Remedies— None Popular,

There are remedies for ending inflation—but none of them are popular.

That would bring inflation to a grinding halt.

But we do not have the personal or political discipline to do that.

Businessmen deplore inflation. But they continue to profit by it because everyone else does, and if they don't stay in the competitive battle they will be submerged.

Labor leaders also speak ill of inflation. But since their workers are caught in the spiral, they proceed with the business of demanding higher wages.

Out of this situation has come a process which, in a very real sense, defies the old law of supply and demand. This is the labor contract which guarantees a built-in inflation. It has the escalator clause which raises wages when the cost of living goes up.

Now, in behalf of the labor leader it must be said that he, like the businessman, can't do anything else. If he should take lower wages for his men, while all about him others were getting more, he would be swallowed up by the reaction.

The "Causes"

Nor is the bellow of labor's enemies that wage increases alone cause inflation anything but hypocrisy. To be sure, wage rises play a major part. But the "causes" are all wrapped up in one ball of wax.

It can be said for President Eisenhower that he sincerely has tried to do something about inflation. But, in candor, it also must be admitted that many of the industrial leaders of the nation who hailed him so gladly in 1952, and again in 1956, have run off and left him.

The President must, at times and with reason, feel like the boy who stood on the burning deck from whence all but he had fled. Any citizen who reads his daily paper, in which is reported the doings of the Congress, is familiar with the fact there is tremendous pressure on the Congress to reduce taxes and to practice economy.

Yet, at the same time there is a constant, if less advertised, pressure on the same Congress to spend more money. Human nature being what it is, the cry for savings always is that they be had in some field other than the one in which the personal interests of the group making the demand are involved. The savings must always be made at the expense of someone else. The Navy always wants defense cuts to come out of the Army or Air Force. And the latter two insist the Navy is near obsolete and should have its budget reduced. The same thing happens in business.

Income and Output

Now, a simple fact is that what happens to income and output determines what happens to prices.

As wages and salaries go up, the supply of things to purchase with these earnings cannot possibly increase at a like rate. So, there develops a competition to buy these "things." And as the competitive buying goes on, the prices of goods and certain foods go up.

A puzzled housewife finds her pork, bacon, lamb and hamburger costing more. The increased wage her husband got still buys less. It does because it is worth less—in the face of the demand for consumer goods whose production has not kept pace with wage increases.

Relatively the same sort of thing has been going on in the construction field with the competition for labor and materials. If it goes on unchecked it will destroy savings and confidence in our currency.

The Federal Reserve System has acted again in an effort to slow down the competition for scarce "things" and building material. There will be some harsh adjustments. But at stake are the E Bonds savings, and all the other type savings investments.

The average American will do well to write his Congressman in defense of the Federal Reserve Bank's effort to protect the value of our dollar.

End Duplication In Missile Push, Wilson Orders

By JACK RAYMOND
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Secretary of Defense Wilson appointed a high level committee today to end the duplication in the Army and Air Force's development of a 1,500-mile ballistic missile.

Wilson, compelled by economic as well as strategic reasons to act swiftly, ordered a choice between the Army's 1,500-mile Jupiter and the Air Force's Thor, of the same estimated range, or a decision to combine the best features of both.

"The missiles up for evaluation 'at the earliest practicable date' are being counted upon to be an integral part of the nation's defense system."

TOP-RANKING OFFICIALS

The three highest-ranking missile officials in the military establishment were named to the committee. They are William H. Holaday, Wilson's special assistant for guided missiles; Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, director of the Army's Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.; and Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever of the Air Research and Development Command.

The Army and Air Force have been rivals for several years in their efforts to develop a 1,500-mile ballistic missile. Such missiles, which receive their power and guidance at the time of launching, in the manner of bullets and rockets, are capable of greater speeds and heights than piloted bomber-type missiles.

The 1,500-mile ballistic missiles are identified as "intermediate" to distinguish them from "intercontinental" guided missiles with ranges of 5,000 miles.

AIR RESPONSIBILITY

Whichever missile is chosen, the Air Force has been awarded operational responsibility for the intermediate range missiles. This was announced by Secretary Wilson last November.

According to some informants at the Pentagon, the ultimate weapon chosen for development and production probably will be one with the shape or "configuration" of the Thor, as well as motors developed by the Air Force, but with guidance systems developed by the Army.

Today's order requiring a choice apparently was based on the pending expiration in November of the Army's funds for developing the Jupiter. In addition, each of the missiles is reported to have reached a stage of development in which further parallel effort is not worth the cost. The Jupiter is reported to have been successfully fired over a distance of 1,500 miles. A special

House Votes 4-Cent Postage On Letters, 7-Cent Airmail

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—The House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill to raise postal rates. Included is a boost to four cents for the three-cent letter rate.

The increase would be effective Oct. 1.

In addition to increasing regular letter rates the bill would boost airmail charges from six to seven cents an ounce.

Action on the measure had been sought by the Eisenhower administration.

The House earlier beat down an attempt to knock out the proposed hike in letter charges.

The Post Office Department has estimated its costs exceed revenues by about 651 million dollars a year. It has said the rate bill would add $27½ million dollars to revenue by 1960.

The Senate hasn't acted yet on the rate proposal but there has been speculation it might tie it to another measure which would raise the pay of postal workers.

Proposed first-class rate hikes, in addition to that on the ordinary letter, include: airmail, up from 6 to 7 cents an ounce and postcards, up from 2 to 3 cents.

Raises for other classes of mail would be:

Second class, 15 per cent increase in each of the next four years.

Third class, a raise from 2 to 3 cents for the first two ounces per piece and a two-phase boost from 1½ cents to 2½ cents on the bulk minimum rate by July 1, 1959.

Charges on controlled circulation mailings would be increased from 10 to 12 cents a pound.

Tybee's 'Wide Open' Reputation Is Long-Standing, Williams Says

State Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams said Tuesday Savannah Beach has had a reputation of being "wide open" for many years, but that "to read the papers it might be inferred that I started it."

He made the comment in a speech to the Druid Hills Civic Club. Williams also told the club his agents are investigating package stores at the Tybee Island resort town, and will close down any found violating the law.

Meanwhile, since the Constitution's story Monday reporting on wide-open gambling and liquor law violations at Savannah Beach, Williams has written a Savannah Beach resident about his investigation.

Brilliant New Comet Visible After Sunset

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP)—A big, bright new comet—rivaling and perhaps surpassing in brightness any seen since 1910 or 1911—now has moved into a position where millions of Americans may easily view it, the Harvard College Observatory reported today.

Dr. Donald Menzel, director of the observatory, said it now may be seen, soon after sunset, below the Big Dipper.

Its brightness—second magnitude—makes it easily visible to the naked eye.

3.3 Billion Aid Passed By Senate

By E. W. KENWORTHY

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—The Senate passed by voice tonight a bill authorizing $3,367,063,000 for foreign aid in the fiscal year that began July 1.

The compromise bill, product of a joint conference committee on differing versions previously passed by House and Senate, now goes to the House for completion of congressional action, possibly tomorrow.

The Senate began debate this afternoon shortly after President Eisenhower had exhorted congressional leaders, for the second time in two days, to put forth the utmost effort to forestall further cuts in the program.

As the authorization bill emerged from a House-Senate conference committee last Thursday, it set a ceiling on aid expenditures of $3,367,063,000, $497,327,000 below the President's request.

There have been reports that during the appropriations process still to come the funds would be cut still more sharply.

Last night the President took the unusual step of asking 10 con-

Rights Bill Is Sent to Rules Panel

Action in House
Tangles Measure

By ALBERT RILEY

Constitution Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Already snarled in partisan politics, the civil rights bill today became more deeply entangled in House rules and procedures that could very well strangle it for this year.

The issue went to the House Rules Committee after two attempts to get House floor action on the Senate-amended bill failed.

As a result, Rep. Davis of Georgia smilingly commented that "the chances are pretty good that we will go home without a bill."

AFL-CIO SWITCHES

Meanwhile, in an apparent effort to break a Democratic-Republican deadlock, the executive council of the AFL-CIO did an about face and called for passage of the bill as amended by the Senate.

Up to now, the AFL-CIO had been adamant in its opposition to the Senate's jury trial amendment to the bill.

The Democratic leadership is trying to get the bill enacted with the Senate amendments largely intact, which would require House agreement. Republicans are insisting on strengthening the bill in a joint Senate-House conference committee.

SEEKS CONFERENCE

In today's maneuvering, the first attempt to get some sort of House action was made by Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.), who asked unanimous consent that the House disagree to the Senate changes and send the bill to conference.

Rep. Walter (D-Pa.), promptly objected, and several Southerners, including Rep. Forrester of Georgia, were on their feet to object. This killed Keating's move.

The leading Democratic advocate of civil rights in the House, Rep. Celler (D-N.Y.), then proposed that the House accept the Senate amendments, with one change in the jury trial proviso. Keating's objection was sufficient to block that move.

SPECIAL SESSION

Meanwhile, Keating again raised the specter of a special session of Congress this fall to dispose of the civil rights question if a bill suitable to the Republicans cannot be agreed upon at this year's regular session.

Keating, who said he believes a delay would be better than accepting the Senate version, said he would urge the President to call such an extra session.

The New Yorker also said he will seek tomorrow to get early action on the bill by the Rules Committee, which is headed by a Southerner, Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.).

At the heart of this power struggle is whether the Democrats or the Republicans get the credit for

More Pay Voted To Disabled Vets

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—The House passed and sent to President Eisenhower today a bill for a raise of almost 25 per cent in compensation paid veterans for total disabilities caused by war-time service.

The measure will take effect Oct. 1 if Eisenhower signs it into law. The cost is estimated at 169 million dollars a year.

A 10 per cent increase is granted veterans less than totally disabled. Those 100 per cent disabled would have their compensation stepped up from $181 to $225 a month.

Lawson's appointment as highway program coordinator and consultant to the Highway Board, an unpaid position, had drawn some newspaper criticism.

He resigned as Highway chairman July 2 in order to comply with a state law requiring him to do so at least 12 months before "offering" for political office.

WITH RELUCTANCE

Griffin, in a letter to Lawson, said he was accepting the resignation with "reluctance."

"Your advice and counsel in administrative matters pertaining to the Highway Board has proved of immeasurable value, the governor said.

Lawson is known to have the backing of some members of the Griffin administration.

The Savannah Evening Press Tuesday joined The Savannah Morning News in calling for enforcement of all laws.

The Savannah Sheriff William C. Harris had lambasted The Constitution for its reports.

"This department has, from time to time," the letter continued, "checked the licensed liquor stores on Savannah Beach to determine whether any of the licensed retail stores were operating on Sunday or whether such licensees were violating any other portion of the law or regulations."

We shall continue our investigation in regard to the operation of these stores.

His Hand Frozen To Cotton Picker

MEMPHIS, Aug. 13 (AP)—An Arkansas man froze his hand to a mechanical cotton picker today when he accidentally opened the valve on a container of icy propane gas.

Arthur Corter, 43, quickly unscrewed the part of the machine to which his hand was frozen and stuck it in a deep puddle of water to thaw. The only apparent ill effect was a small chemical burn.

Her Dream Means

A Financial Setback

An Atlanta woman decided Tuesday she wasn't dreaming after all.

Miss Faye Broadhead of 1423 Stewart Ave., S.W., told police she was awakened Monday night and thought she saw someone in her room.

Charging it off to a dream, Miss Broadhead went back to sleep.

Patrolmen J. R. Crumbley and V. L. Lindsey said she discovered Tuesday her wallet had been looted of $28.

Lawson Quits As Adviser For Roads

Roger H. Lawson resigned Tuesday from the advisory highway post he had taken last month when he quit as Highway Board chairman to run for governor next year.

In a letter of resignation to Gov. Griffin, Lawson said he had acquainted the present Highway Board members with administrative matters that were pending when he resigned as highway chairman.

"I now report to you that my services with the Highway Department have been completed," Lawson told the governor.

IN NO CAPACITY

"I am no longer to be considered a part of the department's organization in any capacity whatsoever," he said.

Lawson's appointment as highway program coordinator and consultant to the Highway Board, an unpaid position, had drawn some newspaper criticism.

He resigned as Highway chairman July 2 in order to comply with a state law requiring him to do so at least 12 months before "offering" for political office.

RISE AND SHINE

Rise and Shine is one of the three dogs still missing with Mrs. Gray and the 16-year-old niece.

Meanwhile, Mumford said the identity which the 40-year-old woman had assumed since coming to Atlanta three years ago was "absolutely fictitious."

He added she used the name "Janet R. Gray," when she took a job as manager of a private medical clinic at 231 E. Ponce de Leon Ave., Decatur, in November, 1954.

While he would make no official comment on the identity of Mrs. Gray, the FBI agent intimated the full story, when it can be told, will be startling.

Record Budget Asked for U.N.

Polish Strikers Defy Machineguns as Reds Rush In More Police

Lodz Fears A Repeat of 'Bread' Riots

By ANTHONY J. CAVENDISH

LODZ, Poland, Aug. 13 (UP)—Police reinforcements rushed from Warsaw to Lodz today to cope with a violence-tinged sit-down strike that threatened to develop into a Poznan-style "bread and freedom" riot.

The atmosphere was tense and ugly. Hundreds of wives and mothers pushed through lines of police and militiamen armed with sub-machineguns to bring hot foods and coffee to the 5,000 strikers at the two main bus and trolley car depots.

STRIKERS JEER

Strikers lounging around the buildings jeered when told they would be paid for the two days they have been on strike provided they returned to work immediately.

Army and civilian trucks were being used to transport other workers to their jobs in this textile center which is the second largest city in Poland.

It appeared that only force could dislodge the strikers from the Dambrowski and Tramway OWA depots, where they began a strike yesterday to demand a 50 per cent wage increase. Current monthly salaries run about 900 zlotys ($35 at the tourist rate of exchange). A government offer to provide another 50,000,000 zlotys ($2,187,500) in additional pay next October was rejected as insufficient.

The government, in turn, rejected the strikers' wage demands on grounds they would strain the inflation-plagued economy.

POZNAN REPORT

The mood of the me and women holding the depots indicated to observers here that if force were used to smash the strike, there would be a repeat of the "bread and freedom" rioting that burned the city of Poznan into a battleground in June, 1956, and resulted in the deaths of 53 persons.

The strikers and their families were bitter. They denied Communist newspaper reports that they started clashes with police yesterday by attacking them with clubs.

The strikers said the police attacked first and that the militia fired tear gas which injured five women.

Sale of liquor in Lodz was banned for fear a few drunken agitators might set off "real trouble."

A Sizzling 95 Expected 2 Days

Wildly scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers are predicted for Atlanta Wednesday and Thursday.

Both days will continue partly cloudy and hot. Temperatures are expected to range between 72 and 95. Extremes in Atlanta Tuesday were 72 and 87.

The opening of "The Pajama Game" at Chastain Park was rained out by a drencher Tuesday night, while many sections of Atlanta went dry. The play is rescheduled to open at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

3 U.S. Diplomats Expelled by Syria

Washington Blasts Charge Of Plot To Topple Kuwatly

DAMASCUS, Aug. 13 (AP)—Syria ordered the ouster of three American embassy officials tonight after accusing the United States of plotting to overthrow President Shukri Kuwatly.

The three must leave the country tomorrow.

Charges against them and the United States were indignantly rejected by the embassy.

BRANDED UNWELCOME

The branding of the three as persona non grata—unwelcome—was announced by a Foreign Office spokesman.

The three were identified as: Lt. Col. Robert W. Malloy, military attaché.

Howard E. Stone, the embassy's second secretary for political affairs.

Vice Consul Francis Getton.

The government move followed an announcement here that Syrian military authorities had unveiled "an American plot to overthrow Syria's present regime."

REQUEST TO U.S.

The spokesman said Syria's request to the United States to recall the three was delivered by the secretary general of the Syrian Foreign Ministry, Dr. Salah Tarazi, in a meeting with U.S.

Charge d'Affaires Robert C. Strong.

A foreign office statement said: "Dr. Tarazi today received the U.S. charge d'affaires, Mr. Strong, and told him the Syrian government would be grateful if the three diplomats left Syrian territory within 24 hours. The American charge d'affaires agreed to the Syrian request."

$300 MILLION

In alleging a plot to overthrow President Kuwatly, the government said the United States had been willing to give between 300 and 400 million dollars in aid if a new government would make peace with Israel.

An official Syrian statement said the United States sent its "No. 1 expert on coups d'etat" to mastermind the conspiracy. It identified him as Howard Stone and said he "organized similar plots in Sudan and Iran and was behind the American coup d'etat in Guatemala in 1955."

In 1955, Guatemala's Communist-led government was thrown out by Carlos Castillo Armas, who became the country's president and who was assassinated last month by a young Communist guard.

LIFE SENTENCE

The Syrian statement said Stone collaborated with ex-dictator Col. Adib Shisheki and Col. Ibrahim Hussein, the Syrian military attaché in Rome. They were identified as the leaders of the conspiracy. Shisheki was sentenced in absentia last February to life imprisonment on charges of leading a subversive group.

After the Syrian statement had been aired, the Soviet ambassador to Syria, Serguei Nemtchine, met with Premier Sabri Assali. He reportedly affirmed Russia's "preparedness to stand by Syria's side in the face of all foreign imperialistic intrigues."

Criminal Prosecution Of Dio Pal Considered

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—Chairman McClellan (D-Ark) of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee ticked off 13 charges against former labor leader Anthony Doria today. The senator called on the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution.

McClellan told Doria that a transcript of his two days of testimony also was going to the Internal Revenue Service in case the federal tax collectors "want to pay you a visit too."

Mainly the charges were that Doria, for 23 years the secretary-treasurer of the Allied Industrial Workers and its predecessor, the AFL United Auto Workers, had misused union funds and had worked hand-in-glove with labor racketeer Johnny Dio.

In one of the final episodes of Doria's sessions with the senators, he and they listened to a secret recording of a 1953 telephone conversation between him and Dio.

The conversation showed that the two men were discussing the transfer of some AIW union locals, controlled by Dio, into the Teamsters Union.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said that at the time, Vice President James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters was trying to get Dio into a position of power within the union in New York, but that George Meany, then president of the AFL, stepped in and spoiled the deal.

Doria said today he planned to file a suit for 2½ million dollars against the AFL-CIO and individuals who sought to oust him from his union. Doria left the AIW last March by request and under pressure.

Soviet Boss Denounces Adenauer

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

BERLIN, Aug. 13 — Nikita Khrushchev denounces Chancellor Adenauer today as a man who was preparing the German people for a new war. Prior to his attack on the chancellor, Khrushchev and Anastas Mikoyan, a Soviet deputy premier, signed a long declaration in which they pledged the Soviet Union's complete political and economic support for East Germany.

The avowed aim of the Soviet Union is to build up the economic power of East Germany and eventually to force West Germany to accept reunification of the country on Soviet terms.

SOVIET TERMS

These include a confederation of the two states through bilateral negotiations, the withdrawal of all foreign troops from German territory and the removal of the two confederated states from NATO and the Warsaw Treaty Alliance.

Khrushchev, concluding his tour of East Germany, made an attack on Chancellor Adenauer that surpassed anything he had said here against the West German leader.

The Soviet leader delivered his denunciation at an open air rally in the Marx Engels Platz. East German officials said 250,000 attended the rally.

APPROPRIATE CHEERS

The people were marched to the square in organized groups. Solid blocks of Communist cheering sections applauded Khrushchev and other speakers at appropriate intervals. Individual cheerleaders were placed among the crowd, generally passive and stolid under the flow of oratory.

Khrushchev charged that Dr. Adenauer had raised the issue of the repatriation of Germans in the Soviet Union for the sole purpose of preparing the German people for a new war.

The Soviet leader's rage presumably was caused by a new note from the Bonn government insisting that the question of repatriation be continued.

Oman Sultan Wins Village Of Key Foe

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

TANUF, Oman, Aug. 13—Troops of the sultan of Muscat and Oman entered this "capital" of one of the sultan's strongest foes today.

British armored cars led the advance into the domain of Sheikh Suleiman Bin Hamyar, the most powerful tribal ruler in the area, who had fled.

Bahlan, 15 miles away, which was also dominated by Sheikh Suleiman, also capitulated without resistance.

ROCKETS HAD FAILED

Tanuf had refused to the last to display the red flag symbolic of loyalty to the sultan, said Bin Taimur, who is supported by Britain. Royal Air Force rockets had knocked one side of the main tower without winning a surrender.

Today, as a reconnaissance column approached under the command of British Brigadier J. A. R. Robertson, the people of Tanuf wavered.

The political representative of the sultan, Maj. Jasper Coats, a retired British officer, went forward on foot with two followers bearing a big red flag. He walked up to an impressive mud brick structure towering on the edge of a stony plain at the foot of a mountain. Minutes later he appeared to signal the rest of the column on.

WALLED VILLAGE

Tanuf is less impressive inside than from the plain. It is really like a walled village with small defense towers along the walls and a big keep in the corner. Its plan seemed to have been inspired by the crusader castles or those of Medieval Europe.

Sheikh Suleiman was not here. He is believed to be in the mountains with Ghalib Bin Ali, the Imam of Oman, who Sheikh Suleiman is said, more or less, to have appointed.

Sky-Looking Teens
Are Well Grounded

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

SEVENTY-SIX-YEAR-OLD C. J. YOUNG of 114 Melrose Ave., Decatur, may be the champion tomato grower in these parts. He offers in evidence the four whoppers photographed here by Edna Weston. Texas and California growers, please note.

The fat red "beefsteak" tomatoes displayed by Young came from one plant. The largest weighs 2½ pounds; the four total 8¾ pounds. Young grew 'em, along with collards and corn, in his small kitchen garden as a retirement hobby. "I like to eat my home-grown stuff, too," he smiles.

ATLANTA TEEN-AGERS do not share the apathy some adults show toward civil defense.

That's the word from CD leaders here who report their busiest volunteers wear a shoulder patch marked "TAGO."

TAGO stands for Teen-Age Ground Observers. More than 500 boys and girls in this area rate that title. Young volunteers have been recruited here since November, 1956. They were presented with their patches at last Armed Forces Day observance at the Atlanta Filter Center. Youngsters are being trained in vital civil defense maneuvers. Their latest assignment: a "self-help, neighbor-help survival course" taught through Atlanta's Metropolitan Civil Defense Office. Eventually teen-agers will qualify for tasks in observation posts and filter centers over the state.

Liquor Arrest
Involves Auto
Of Griffin Aide

Willie Long, Marietta Negro, was charged with transporting 10 quarts of tax-paid whisky Tuesday after being arrested about 1:30 a.m. in Kennesaw, Cobb Sheriff K. C. Sanders said.

Major John King of Marietta, an aide on Gov. Griffin's staff, said he owned the car Long was driving. King said that after a party at Allatoona Monday night, he instructed his helper, Long, to return the remaining refreshments and food in King's car to the King home in Marietta.

Sheriff Sanders said he knew the Negro was not "bootlegging" the whisky when arrested by police on reckless driving and speeding charge. Sanders said he swore out the warrant on the liquor charge because the whisky was found in the car. He said he also had signed condemnation papers against the car.

Aldermen Ready To Open
Police Inquiry to the Public

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

"The time has come" when the special Atlanta aldermanic committee investigating grand jury criticism of the city police department "should have some public hearings," the committee attorney said Tuesday.

The statement came from attorney Hugh Dorsey Jr. after he had what was described as an "information swapping" session Tuesday afternoon with Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb.

Dorsey, questioned by a reporter, said Ald. Milton Faris, committee chairman, is out of town and meetings cannot be scheduled until he returns.

The attorney added, however, that the "committee expects to have some public hearings in the very near future." He said the body may have "more than one hearing."

Dorsey declined to elaborate on what he had discussed with Webb. He did say though that he had a "fruitful discussion" with the solicitor.

The exchange of information between the solicitor's office and the committee began shortly after the committee was established, Dorsey explained.

"Mr. Webb and his office had been making the investigation a

Keeping Current... For Economy!

In the illustration above, you see a very happy man at a very wonderful moment. The title, the keys and the car are his—and he's starting out on his first journey at the wheel.

Of course, there's not much doubt as to why he decided to purchase a new Cadillac.

Like everyone else who selects the "car of cars", he did it to "keep current", so to speak, on the new miracles of performance and beauty and comfort that Cadillac engineers and stylists have made available to the world's motorists.

But coming to Cadillac, as he did, at this time of the year, we suspect that he was inspired by the added motive of practicality.

For in addition to the normal Cadillac economies of modest purchase price, low operating cost and high resale value—

Cadillac dealers are, at this time, seasonally prepared to make Cadillac ownership even more attractive than ever.

Because of the demand for used cars and because of increased production of the Cadillac car itself, the odds are that this gentleman received both a generous allowance on his previous car and prompt delivery of his new Cadillac.

All in all, he took advantage of an opportunity to combine motordom's greatest virtues with motordom's greatest value.

Have you considered how wonderful it would be to step into a Cadillac of your own? Then, you should pay your dealer a visit—spend an hour on the highway in the luxury of Fleetwood coachcrafting—and get the facts for yourself.

You'll find that the car is Cadillac—and the time is now!

Where Are State's 'Phantom' Students?

Just how widespread is this business of padding attendance rolls in Georgia schools?

Figures coming out of reports by the State Department of Education as presented to the state board Monday indicate a somewhat remarkable system of estimates and record-keeping on the part of the former. In fact, it leads to downright skepticism of the department's methods of keeping track of attendance.

While total enrollment this year increased by 18,735, average daily attendance increased by only 12,510. While planning has been based on increases of 30,000 per year, the figures fall considerably short of that. What has happened to these "phantom" children?

The figures do indicate one thing. The crackdown on Johnson County two years ago for padding attendance records in order to receive more financial aid from the state has resulted in a tightening up of bookkeeping in local systems. It also indicates that many more counties other than Johnson may have been indulging in the practice.

W. E. Pafford, director of field service for the department, told the board that some "irregularities" in keeping attendance records had been found and that 10 teachers were suspended by local boards because of it. Where did these occur and what other penalties were invoked?

Vice Chairman James S. Peters brought up a good question when he asked Mr. Pafford how it was possible that one area had a loss of 2,044 in enrollment but a gain of 295 in average daily attendance—the figure on which state aid is based. How, indeed?

At a time when population changes are the rule, it is understandable that local communities resist losing teachers and state aid. That makes it all the more important that the state keep a closer check. School funds should be allotted where the children are and not where they were if Georgia is to meet its education bill.

On the basis of what came out of the meeting Monday, there appears to have been laxity, even carelessness, in record-keeping. The taxpayers and the Legislature will take some hard looks at these figures in the future.

The Sheriff Is Right; It's His Job, Not Ours

Thanks to the Savannah Morning News and Evening Press for their forthright acceptance of an Atlanta Constitution reporter's exposure of violations of liquor and gambling laws at Savannah Beach.

Quite the contrary to Chatham County Sheriff William Harris' "You're another" or "Attend to your own business" attitude, the News said in an editorial yesterday:

"The fact that certain state laws are ignored at Savannah Beach is no secret. . . . Now that the matter has been brought up again, it is the signal for the usual buck-passing. This game involves the Savannah Beach police, town officials, county law enforcement authorities and even state officials."

As for Sheriff Harris' puerile attack on this newspaper, he must be aware that The Constitution is an enemy—even a crusader—against law violations and invasions of vice in Atlanta and every other Georgia city. If he needs proof, he should consult Atlanta and Fulton County authorities.

Gov. Griffin is right in saying he can do little unless asked to do so by local authorities. The revenue commissioner, however, has demonstrated what he can do about alleged liquor law violations.

Sheriff Harris is right in saying that the job of cleaning up the situation at the beach is not this newspaper's business. But it is his business and that of the people of Chatham County. Our job is to report the news and that we have done. We would suggest that the Chatham sheriff similarly do his.

Let's Keep the Idlers Off Streets of Atlanta

An overdue drive to rid Atlanta streets of racketeers, hoodlums and idlers is gaining momentum.

The fact that 76 persons were sent to the city prison farm in a single session of Municipal Court is proof that the need for a crackdown certainly existed.

Loiterers with time on their hands have a tendency sooner or later to become involved in crime. Any doubts they may have as to the seriousness of the campaign to get them off the streets should be jolted by the stiff action taken by the court Monday.

Another laudable "first" scored Monday was the $2,500 bond set for each of two persons accused as lottery writers.

These were the first instances in which the city has assessed a bond of more than $1,000 in such cases.

The Metropolitan Lottery Squad is making progress. Its activities, coupled with the clampdown on idlers, should make Atlanta a better community and its streets safer for decent citizens. Let the cleanup continue and the loafers go to work or go to jail.

Atlanta Housing Plea Merits Speedy Hearing

City officials have moved with commendable speed to secure 100 per cent Federal Housing Authority insurance for loans to undertake the biggest home building project in the city's history.

The 40-million-dollar undertaking to provide housing for persons displaced by the urban renewal program and expressway construction is a prerequisite to both. Unless such housing is provided—and plans call for its construction by private enterprise—the renewal program as well as expressways cannot proceed.

Mayor Hartsfield and Col. Malcolm Jones, director of the newly created and needed department of urban renewal, signed applications for FHA agreements to insure loans for building Monday. Col. Jones expressed the hope that a beginning on the project involving more than 5,000 units could begin in March of next year.

There seems to be some uncertainty as to where the housing units will be located. This could make for delay. Col. Jones and other city officials should do all possible to speed up a decision.

Since most of the families to be affected are in the low-income group, the housing units must be in the low rent category. Units of this nature have become a bottleneck in the building picture because of hesitancy of investors. But with 100 per cent FHA insurance, this difficulty should be overcome.

We hope the FHA gives speedy approval to the application. It would give Atlanta the go-ahead signal for one of its biggest forward steps, the magnitude of which few people now are aware.

House Should Approve TVA Bill Without Delay

A Senate-passed bill to give the Tennessee Valley Authority self-financing powers is awaiting action in the House. It may languish there until next January unless enough representatives wake up to the need for immediate action.

For several years Congress has failed to approve appropriations for TVA to build steam plants. The government installation, in fact, has been treated somewhat like an unwanted stepchild by this administration despite the fact the government itself is the major consumer of TVA power.

As the result of Congress' negligence and increased demands upon TVA, areas which the facility is obligated to serve face a power shortage in the near future—possibly by the winter of 1959-60—unless new steam plants are built.

The bill passed by the Senate authorizes TVA to issue 750 million dollars in revenue bonds to meet pressing needs for construction during the next few years. Sale of power from the new plants would be restricted to the present TVA service area except for sales by towns or rural cooperatives on the perimeter of the area.

Congress already has wasted valuable years in which advance planning should have been made for TVA's future. The House now should end this foot-dragging and stamp its approval on the Senate bill at the present session.

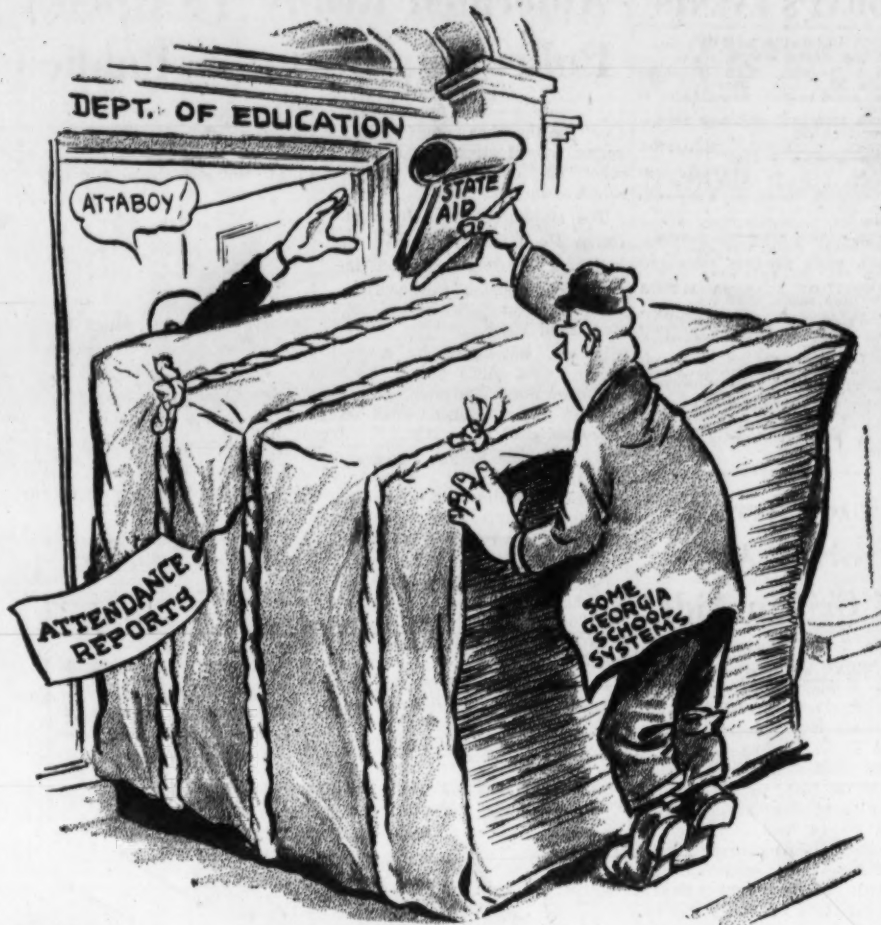

Street Improvements Deserve Green Light

The joint traffic bond commission of Atlanta and Fulton County yesterday held its organizational meeting and should be ready to move ahead with its task.

Voters who overwhelmingly endorsed the bond issue in April have every right to expect the street improvement program to be transferred from the drawing boards to reality at the earliest possible time. Needless delays must be avoided by concrete action.

Acquisition of rights of way, of course, will be a problem. It must be met head-on without dilly-dallying. In this connection the Fulton County commissioners have been doing a commendable job with a $550,000 revolving fund and now have widened its scope to include such matters as payments for preliminary work of architects and contractors.

Meanwhile, street conditions in Atlanta are not becoming any better. It is encouraging to know that the traffic bond commission seems ready to act. It should do so in a businesslike manner and hasten the fulfillment of promises made to the citizens of the community when the bond issue was voted upon.

Addition of Sodium Monofluorophosphate To Salt Suggested as Way To Fluoridate

Atlanta—In a previous letter, April 15, 1957, I made the suggestion that sodium fluoride might be added to table salt, thus permitting us to obtain sufficient fluoride in our food intake to prevent the cavitation of teeth.

I am happy to make another suggestion; to say that Dr. Gunnar Santesson of Stockholm made a report in Malmö, Sweden, June 17, 1957, in which he stated that sodium monofluorophosphate was used to fluoridate table salt rather than drinking water, and animal tests showed it to be readily absorbed as sodium fluoride.

This report by Dr. Santesson appears to me to offer a very practical step in fluoride intake, and gives us a chance to use this valuable aid very satisfactorily in areas where water fluoridation has not been incorporated. Soon local drug houses will have sodium monofluorophosphate for sale to all who want it.

'Crowing Roosters' Disturb the Peace

Atlanta—What would you think about a man and his family who had a total disregard for the peace of his neighbors? A man on our street owns bantam roosters that start crowing at 4 a.m. and continue till 9:00 a.m., etc. People who have been ill and nearly dying in our neighborhood have requested he get rid of these chickens but he refused to heed. They could not get their proper rest and sleep.

This same family, would you believe it, has two French poodles and one house dog, which howl frequently, driving the neighborhood wild. His present neighbor is recovering from a serious operation.

GOP Plays Politics With Rights Bill

WASHINGTON—If the Republicans in Congress kill the Senate-amended civil rights bill, in their pious insistence on a stronger law, Negroes

North and South—ought to recognize it as a cynical bid for their votes in the 1958 congressional elections.

From President Eisenhower on down, the GOP leaders have been claiming the bill was only a moderate, right-to-vote measure.

That was all it was and all they wanted, the Republicans argued in the face of Southern Democratic contentions that the bill was in truth a very harsh measure.

Now the Republicans have it within their power to enact the bill they professed to want all along—or to let it die this year so they can stir up the troublesome issue again in 1958.

Most Northern Democrats are willing to go along with the Senate version. And with the Republicans they hold the balance of power over the outnumbered Southern Democrats.

In truth, the civil rights act now seems to be on the back of the Republican elephant. If the pachyderm flings the cat aside now, it might well come back to haunt instead of help the elephant in 1958.

As for the Southerners in the House, who want no bill at all, they are in a dilemma. Would it be better now to help the Republicans kill the bill and run the risk of a tougher one next year? Or would it be better to help pass the bill now and put the issue aside for awhile?

eration. She is elderly and needs more sleep than she is getting. This man isn't naive. He knows these factors.

A family so extreme in their love for fowl and animals should live on a large farm, the proper place to care for them, not in a residential section.

Meanwhile a petition should be started against this person for his long-time disturbance of the peace.

Jet Stream

Saves Hens

It's getting so you can't count on the clichés. Someone is always coming along to disprove the proven, to discredit the adage and to split the axiom. Take "madder than a wet hen," for instance. It looks like a wet hen, may not be angry after all. On the other hand, only cool and comfortable. Especially in hot weather.

According to the Calhoun Times, Dean Hayes has been spraying his hens. They like it. At least they should.

Dean is director of the Northwest Georgia Agricultural Experiment Station in Gordon County. He has rigged up two poultry houses with automatic sprinklers. When the summer heat hits a level unhealthy for hens, fogging nozzles turn on and spray the flock with a fine mist of water.

Two other houses, unsprinkled, are used for controls. When the temperature was 103 early this month, 48 hens died of heat in the houses without sprinkling. In the henhouses with showers installed, only one hen died. She may have succumbed from the shock of the jet stream.

You'll see it happen I betcha. Air-conditioned poultry houses I mean. Maybe some of them I already are. I've read somewhere about air-conditioned hog houses.

IN THE MAIL: A restaurant in Rochester, N.Y., serves hot syrup with hot cakes. So says Ovid L. Futch of an Emory University address.

Mr. Futch, who travels infrequently and usually eats eggs when he does, was not aware that flapjacks are frequently served with the syrup frigid. At his house his four children get hot cakes "with piping hot syrup straight from the stove."

And speaking of syrup, a firm that manufactures corn syrup recently received this letter:

"Dear Sirs: Though I have taken six cans of your corn syrup, my feet are no better now than they were before I started."

The Humble, Too, Are Sons of God

Recently in Paducah, Ky., an eight-foot granite monument was erected in memory of Alben W. Barkley. On each of the four sides is a sand-carved profile and underneath are inscribed the last words which he spoke: "I would rather be a servant in the House of the Lord than sit in the seats of the mighty."

In the minds and hearts of many persons these words always will be identified with the "Veep," who, although he did indeed sit in the seats of the mighty, never lost sight of the fact that a public official is a public servant.

The words also remind me of Brother Lawrence who in 1666 left the world to live in the Carmelite Monastery in Paris and whose name is preserved only because a few fragments of his writings were preserved by kind friends. His spiritual maxims and especially his book, "The Practice of the Presence of God," are among the most inspiring writings in the vast treasury of religious literature.

The tasks assigned to Brother Lawrence were in the monastery kitchen. For some time he served as dishwasher and then he became cook. These duties, which continued for 15 years, were not attractive to him.

Yet he did the work that fell to him without complaint and he did it as skillfully as he knew how. As a kitchen servant, he displayed, a contemporary wrote, "a singular sagacity, a spaciousness of mind quite beyond the range of the ordinary poor lay-brother, a penetration that surpassed all expectation." If a stranger were to have looked into that kitchen and seen the "rather rough exterior" of Brother Lawrence, he hardly would have believed that long after this man's death his words would still be leading men into the presence of God.

Both Sen. Barkley and Brother Lawrence, each in his own way, were humble servants. One rose to worldwide prominence during his lifetime; the other became known long after his death. Yet each did well chore work, the kind smaller men would have rejected.

In the New Testament is recorded the familiar story of Mary and Martha and in Luke's recollection Martha does not fare too well. In the Bethany home Mary sat at Jesus' feet and Martha kept busy with the preparations of the evening meal. It seemed natural that she should remain in the kitchen. Jesus commended Mary for making the most of the fleeting moments to talk with Him. By implication, at least, Martha was losing her golden opportunity.

But I am sure Luke has told only a portion of the story. I am sure there were many, many times when Martha, the servant, was highly commended by Jesus for the meals she prepared and the comfortable home she kept where Jesus was always welcomed.

Jesus Himself accepted the role of servant. In the Upper Room He bent to wash His disciples' feet. He "took upon Him the form of a servant" (Philippians 2:7).

U.S. Wages Peace On Many Fronts

WASHINGTON—Our leadership in disarmament, which seems to be making slow but sure progress in London, is a matter not only of hope but of national pride. Back home here in Congress are other projects related to the cause of peace. One of them, our foreign economic and military aid program, is under a threat of being curtailed beyond the need at this time. But let us look first at two other projects which have won the public attention that they deserve.

One was almost lost sight of in the midst of other measures that were rushed through the Senate last week. Far transcending in importance the time taken to approve it is the resolution sponsored by Sen. John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.) which put the Senate on record as favoring creation of a permanent United Nations police force to keep the peace.

Such a police force was, as we know, authorized in the charter of the United Nations adopted 11 years ago in San Francisco. But nothing has ever been done about it. New impetus came from creation of a United Nations emergency force for the Middle East last year after the attack on Egypt by Israel, Britain and France, and the success of that temporary police force.

The Sparkman resolution, which will be laid before the U.N. General Assembly in its forthcoming session, welcomes creation of that Middle East emergency force and urges that "a force of a similar character be made a permanent arm of the United Nations."

Another important measure pending in Congress is that to promote the peaceful development of the atom through the so-called "atoms-for-peace" plan originally proposed by President Eisenhower. The international agency already has been set up. In connection with another important aspect of our foreign policy, there is some difficulty ahead. That is the mutual security program of economic and military aid to our allies among free nations. In its original form as initiated by former President Truman—the Marshall Plan—it was as bold as the "atoms-for-peace" proposal and our latest proposal at the London disarmament negotiations in which we offered to open for inspection all of North America north of the Rio Grande, along with NATO nations in Europe, in exchange for inspection of Russia and her Eastern European satellites.

The compelling reason for our mutual aid program was so forcefully expressed by the President at his last news conference that it is worth repeating. He said: "We are trying, through our ability to lend money, both private and public, to help other nations understand what freedom means to men, that they can prosper under it, and that they can keep their individual liberties and rights as they do prosper; that they do not have to bow the neck to dictatorship."

"If they are not helped, I see no prospect that they can ever learn that lesson. . . . now this thing, to my mind, has gotten to the point that it is just the welfare of the United States, and I am not quarreling about the last dollar, but I am saying we should show an attitude of generosity, of readiness to cooperate, getting ourselves in a position over specifically a number of years so that we can cooperate."

Tales of Tomcats Dance in the Head

Nice letter comes from Mrs. Florence G. Bruckner, telling me I ought to be ashamed of myself for dropping my cat, Galahad, out the kitchen door on top of an elderly shepherd dog named Smoky just at the moment Smoky was—well, no matter. She then goes on to discuss tomcats in general and how people misunderstand tomcats, usually, particularly the fact that tomcats are very proud and loving fathers when they have a chance to demonstrate these qualities.

This, however, is rare, for people who have lady cats do not usually have tomcats and vice versa, and when the father cat goes around to visit his young, he gets chased off with a broom.

The more fatherly type of tomcat is not discouraged by this, however. Mrs. Bruckner says, and sometimes he arranges to bring his whole brood to live with him so he can keep an eye on his sons and daughters and see to it that they have the proper bringing up.

"One of the best laughs I ever had in a long and somewhat tiresome life," she writes, "was when my late husband squealed blue murder and hopped out of bed as if the fiend himself was after him and I turned back the covers and there at the foot of the bed was a female cat I'd never laid eyes on before, curled up nursing six brand new kittens. Sitting on a chair nearby, looking as fatuous as all males do at such a time, was our enterprising tomcat, who had brought his lady here for her accouchement."

"I won't tell you what my husband said, nor describe how he looked and the mama cat looked and the tomcat looked in that little tableau when I turned the covers back. But the recollection of it can still send me almost into hysterics. Lord, memories, aren't they wonderful!"

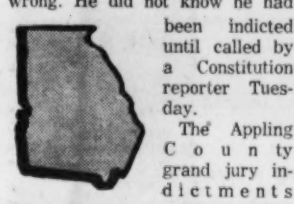

They are indeed. Like the time Mrs. Jerrie Stock of Stone Mountain remembers when she was snoozing in a hammock and her cat Fuzzy leaps into the hammock with her to show her a live lizard he has just caught and the lizard gets away from Fuzzy and is loose in the hammock with Mrs. Stock and there is a great deal of activity in the hammock for awhile as Mrs. Stock and Fuzzy and the lizard all try to depart from it simultaneously.

And the time old Chester—but that is another story.

Baxley Mayor Indicted In Tractor Parts Buying

The mayor of Baxley was indicted there Tuesday on charges of conspiring to obtain tractor parts illegally. Mayor J. M. Dunn immediately denied having done anything wrong. He did not know he had been indicted until called by a Constitution reporter Tuesday.

The Appling County grand jury indicted the mayor and three others conspired to obtain tractor rollers illegally and that the Appling County commissioners were billed for them.

Others named in the indictments are Herschel Baxley, an employee of the J. M. Dunn Construction Co.; H. L. Joyner, former county mechanic; and Grady Mobley, an employee of a construction company belonging to the mayor's brother.

The rollers were purchased from Savannah and Brunswick firms and cost nearly $1,200 each. County commissioners said they had not authorized purchase of the rollers.

"I have done nothing dishonest," Mayor Dunn told the Constitution Tuesday. "I think this is politics more than anything else."

A three man delegation from Tignall conferred with State School Supt. M. D. Collins in Atlanta Tuesday to protest consolidation of the Tignall High School with the Washington High School. The Habersham County grand jury Tuesday indicted a Columbus youth, Stoney Carson Barrett, 17, on a murder charge in the death of S. I. Gilstrap, a guard at the State Training School for Boys at Alto, with the trial set for next week. A former L & N freightman, William Floyd Stewart, 46, of Ramhurst, was killed Tuesday when an L & N freight train ran over him near Chatsworth. A

A Johnson County woman, Mrs. Mona Leonelle Scarborough, 21, of Wrightsville, is in critical condition from injuries sustained when her car turned over Monday on Highway 57 near Wrightsville. Four persons, Marshall Martin, 19; Johnny King, 19, and Billy Carver, 25, and one juvenile, have been arrested by Ware County authorities in connection with the burglary of Laura S. Walker State Park and the theft of two boat motors.

Bank Janitor Held

A 19-year-old Douglas Negro, Jimmy Dell Rice, has been arrested by the FBI and charged with a violation of the Federal Reserve Act in connection with a shortage of $1,360 from the Farmers Bank of Douglas where he was janitor. Rice, being held under $5,000 bond, told the FBI that he used some of the bank funds to buy equipment for a band with which he was to sing so as to further his musical career and study at Virginia State College. The Bleckley County schools will receive more than $200,000 from the State Dept. of Education with the bulk of the money going toward teachers' salaries and bus transportation. Pierce County will hold the fourth annual Miss Pierce County beauty review at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Patterson Lions Park.

A Burn-Out Puts WLW-A Off Air

Transmitter trouble Tuesday night forced WLW-A to discontinue its broadcast activity at 9:07 p.m. The trouble was described by station personnel as a burned-out transmitter line. The television station normally signs off at 12:30 a.m. A station spokesman said the station expected to have repairs made in time to go on the air at its regularly scheduled time Wednesday.

Air Force Investigates Story Of Pilot Missing 54 Days

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—The Air Force said today that it is making a "thorough but routine" investigation of Lt. David Steeves' disappearance for 54 days in California's High Sierras.

The 23-year-old pilot is now temporarily assigned at Bolling Air Force Base, near here, while Air Force experts check the story he told after emerging from the wilderness in June. Steeves bailed out of his jet trainer over the mountains when on a routine flight. The Air Force listed him as officially dead, but 54 days later he stumbled out of the rugged mountains.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

His wife, Rita Steeves of Fairfield, Conn., first welcomed him back saying that it was the "happiest day in my life." This week, however, Mrs. Steeves said that she planned to divorce her husband.

Of this, Steeves said "the decision is hers" and "it shook me pretty hard."

Steeves was given a long vacation after his experience and then ordered to Washington where his physical condition, his story and all of the circumstances surrounding his experience are being checked out.

ROUTINE

The Air Force said that it was routine procedure to investigate and study any man involved in an accident and particularly men who undergo unusual experiences.

The purpose of such investigations, an air official said, is to determine whether any lessons might be learned from one man's experiences that could be applied to Air Force training. Another purpose is to find out the best future use for the man and to determine whether harrowing experiences, such as Steeves reported he had survived, might affect his ability to perform certain military tasks.

TO SURVIVAL SCHOOL

The Air Force had planned to send Steeves to the survival school at Stead Air Force Base near Reno, Nev., so that he could look over the teaching there and share his own experiences with instructors and students.

An Air Force spokesman said that no date has been set for Steeves to go to the survival school and that his future assignment will depend upon the outcome of the investigations now under way here.

The Arlene Sparkle
Rubs Off on People

By PAUL JONES

One of Arlene Francis' friends once remarked: "She is the only person I know who acts as though life were the best party she ever attended."

Maybe that attitude is what makes her new morning show so bright and effervescent. This First Lady of TV certainly gets the day started for you in a sparkling manner.

If you haven't seen Arlene in her new show—and incidentally in her new wheelchair which was necessitated by a broken ankle—we urge you to do so. It is far more intimate and informal than was her Home show. She chats with interesting people, plays games with the audience and focuses the spotlight on the very talented Norman Paris Trio.

The program is a well-organized "polypour"—that's the spot-name for it—of chatty conversation and off-the-cuff entertainment designed especially for those who haven't quite got their eyes opened yet.

But, it is not what Arlene does, but how she does it that counts. If you ever catch this girl without a smile on her face, let us know. Her laugh is infectious, and her charm and intelligence are factors which aren't too common among TV personalities.

Arlene had an especially good show Tuesday. She talked with Cyril Ritchard, who is known to almost everyone in this land by virtue of his appearance on "Peter Pan." He is one of the best comedians about. His interview with Miss Francis was one of the most engaging bits we've seen on television recently.

IF WE HAVE whetted your appetite for this morning eye-

CHANNEL CHUCKLE

HOW WOULD YOU like to have a program which featured setting-up exercises for the ladies early in the morning?

A "senior citizen and a reader" writes: "Asking about ideas for TV? What about a 5 to 15-minute setting-up program in the a.m.—7 to 8 o'clock or thereabouts? Not strenuous for the ambitious—but good routine muscle tone exercises for senior citizens who want to keep fit, as well as for the younger group."

"At one time there was a radio program of this sort—with music. It seems to me a TV program would be very welcome and successful."

Sounds good, huh?

A READER from Jonesboro who failed to enclose the first page of a letter writes: "How do you feel about the silly women on some programs? Mark Sabers' Girl Friday is sickening, and the girl and boy reporters on Superman are an awful insult to all reporters. Maybe that is one reason why Westerns are so popular."

DIAL TWISTERS—The filter cigarette manufacturers are going to hit hard with a $40,000,000 sales campaign on TV this fall. . . . They will be trying to overcome the cancer reports. . . . Nat King Cole is whittling away at the $64,000 Question ratings. . . . A stagehand at Garry Moore's I've Got a Secret revealed that it was his wife's birthday. He was asked what he was going to get her as a gift. . . . "I don't know yet," was the candid answer. "She wants me to be surprised." . . . Art Linkletter will become a father-in-law this year. His 20-year-old son, Jack, will wed Barbara May Hughes, a non-professional, Dec. 21.

STARS FOR STEEL—June Lockhart plays the lead in the U.S. Steel Hour production of "A Loud Laugh," at 9 p.m. on Channel 5. She plays the part of a sensitive school teacher.

BRINGING HIS MOVIE GIRL

Audie Will Debut on TV
In 'Suspicion' Drama

By RICHARD A. SHEPARD

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Audie Murphy will make his television debut in the National Broadcasting Co.'s new Suspicion series.

The World War II hero has been signed to appear in one of the series' filmed shows titled "The Fight." It is reported the work first was to be called "The South American Story." It is about a "strange disappearance—that might be murder," with Murphy playing an American pilot involved in the case.

The title and plot were altered to avoid resemblance to the case of Dr. Jesus de Galindez, a foe of the government of the Dominican Republic, who disappeared in 1956.

Susan Kohner, who has appeared with Murphy in motion pictures, also will appear in the telecast. The play was written by Halstead Welles and Gene L. Cook. It will be produced by Alan Miller and directed by Frank P. Rosenberg.

Gumplay and thudding hooves will take over on American Broadcasting Co. TV between 5 and 6 p.m. Saturdays starting next month.

Tales of the Texas Rangers is being scheduled for the half-hour at 5 p.m. It will be hotly pursued at 5:30 by The Lone Ranger. Both will set up camp Sept. 21. The Lone Ranger is being shifted from its present base at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays to make way for Circus Boy.

One Missile Is Ordered By Wilson

End Duplication, Services Told

version of the missile, containing multi-stage power devices, is reported to have been launched for 3,000 miles.

THOR'S FAILURES

Three attempted firings of the Thor have been reported, each of them officially "successful" but none of them resulting in any achievement of distance. Once the Thor traveled a foot and failed. A second time it was destroyed by the range officer, when it began to wobble after traveling a few miles in 35 seconds. Higher officials were perturbed by what they regarded as a premature destruction of the missile.

The most recent attempt to fire the Thor ended before it started, when fuel trouble was revealed during the "countdown" — the final seconds that are counted off before the launching device is triggered.

In the meantime the Defense department announced further efforts to cut expenses. Secretary Wilson, who is soon to be succeeded by Neil H. McElroy, president of Procter & Gamble, has ordered the services to keep their total spending down to $38,000,000 during the current fiscal year.

Wilson ordered a 5 per cent reduction in the "progress payments" to military contractors. These payments are the initial downpayment and other installments the Defense department gives defense firms to help them bear the expense of materials purchasing and hiring of manpower.

NEW CEILING

Beginning in September, the Defense department ceiling for such payments will be 70 per cent instead of 75 per cent of the total costs and 85 per cent instead of 90 per cent for the costs of "direct" labor and material. The payments do not cover overhead costs.

A Pentagon spokesman said the action might reduce spending by $266,000,000 in the next 12 months. It reverses a decision to permit large down payments which was introduced in 1954 in response to industry pressure.

Rights Bill's Plight Makes Davis Smile

passing a civil rights bill or the blame for killing it.

If they can get the more moderate Senate bill enacted in a compromise move, the Democrats could claim a share of the credit with minority voters. If it is killed for this year, both parties will try to blame the other. And the Republicans would argue that the Democrats thwarted their efforts to get a stronger bill.

This was the situation today as Senate Democratic Leader Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn worked for a compromise, while Republicans Knowland in the Senate and Martin (Mass) in the House stood firm for a stronger bill.

Southerners chortled gleefully at this struggle in hopes the deadlock cannot be broken.

"I wish 'em both luck," said Davis, referring to the efforts of both the Democratic and Republican leadership to remain firm in their positions.

gressional leaders of both parties to come to the White House.

As an indication of the fervor in which he spoke against further reductions, it was reported that he told the leaders he would be glad to give up part of his own salary to meet the pressing need of adequate funds for foreign aid.

This morning, in his regular weekly meeting with Republican leaders, the President renewed his appeal.

Later, House Republican Leader Martin, told reporters that the President might have to call Congress back into special session later in the year if cuts in foreign aid appropriations went "too far."

GAVE NO COUNTERANCE

Sen. Knowland and Martin gave no counterance to rumors that a foreign aid-civil rights bargain might be in the making, under which House Republicans would support the Senate civil rights bill in return for Democratic support of the foreign aid bill.

Martin called this "just wild rumor." Sen. Knowland said "the national defense of our country should not be put on the trading block."

"If we cut very drastically, there is a question whether we will have enough funds to carry us until Jan. 1 to fulfill our commitments," Martin said.

PRESIDENT ASKED FOR

The President had asked for $3,864,410,000. The Senate authorized $3,617,333,000 and the House $3,116,833,000. In conference, the $500,500,000 difference was split.

The administration also suffered a partial defeat of funds, although it won a victory in principle, for the new element in the foreign aid program—the revolving fund for economic aid.

The President asked for a three-year program for this fund, with a first-year installment of $500,000,000 and authorization for expenditures of $750,000,000 for each of the two following years.

The conferees approved an authorization of $500,000,000 for the first year and $625,000,000 for fiscal 1959, which begins July 1, 1958.

The administration's request for $1,900,000,000 for direct military assistance—planes, tanks, guns, etc.—was scaled down to $1,600,000,000.

Defense support funds, to enable allied countries to maintain a greater military effort than they could otherwise afford, was cut from $900,000,000 to $750,000,000. Smaller cuts were made in other programs.

such widespread benefit to our people throughout the state."

Vandiver said county contracts should be awarded only on a basis of need and not on the basis of "political favoritism" or "political pressure."

"The system of contracts with counties and municipalities is far too important and valuable to be needlessly endangered through personal or political abuse," he said.

Buy North Avenue Land Now, Bond Panel Urges

The Joint Bond Commission recommended Tuesday that Atlanta begin buying the right-of-way for the North avenue widening project immediately.

The recommendation was included in a resolution approving the plans for widening the street to six-lane width from the Expressway to West Peachtree street, NE, at an estimated cost of $800,000.

The resolution also asked however, that "no actual construction be started prior to Jan. 1, 1958 . . . in view of the heavy traffic on this street during the football season."

BETWEEN SEASONS

Atlanta construction chief Ray Nixon, a member of the commission, said this would allow the city to work on the job after the football season ends and to have the street reopened to traffic by the following October.

The commission indicated it would be in position at its next meeting to send out other bond jobs to engineers so work can begin on the plans.

The North avenue plans, Nixon explained, were drawn so that the project does not affect the building of All Saints Church, at North avenue and West Peachtree. Taking a portion of the church building would involve tearing down a "load-bearing" wall and would "ruin" the building, Nixon asserted.

REMOVE STEPS

As drawn, the plans require only the removal of a set of steps and the closing of an entrance on North avenue.

The Board of Aldermen was asked to approve the plans, begin immediate procurement of the right of way and to let the contract for construction as soon as right of way acquisition is completed, but not before Jan. 1.

AIR RIGHTS

The commission discussed at length the need for hiring consulting engineers on the many projects proposed with bond funds. The body passed a resolution recommending hiring a consulting engineer to prepare a traffic operating plan in schematic form of the area to be affected by the Hunter street and Bartow street viaducts.

City Traffic Engineer Karl Bevins and County Public Works Director A. T. McDonald said the engineer's services would be required on these jobs to do planning on what will be done in regard to air rights between the viaducts.

Commission Chairman Robert H. White said a number of vested interests, such as railroads and department stores and the U.S. Post Office, will be highly interested in planning which would provide for lower-level entrances to property under the viaducts.

Bevins was asked to report at the next meeting on hiring the consulting architects. Also scheduled to come up at that meeting are possible letting of engineering contracts for the Lakewood avenue extension, Piedmont road widening and similar projects.

McDonald and S. R. Young emphasized that work on the traffic projects should be expedited.

Alderman Jesse Draper, who attended the meeting, suggested the

3 Boys Raid College Park Farm And Haul Off All 48 Watermelons

Watermelons are mighty tempting to 16-year-old boys.

That the police can understand.

Three 16-year-olds visited a watermelon patch belonging to Woodrow Oglesby, of Fellwood road, College Park, and the police didn't find that too disturbing.

But, said Sgt. Jack Cain, of the Juvenile Squad, the boys picked all 48 melons which Oglesby had cultivated. They loaded them all into a car.

Then they sold all 48 to a produce dealer for $13.

They didn't eat a single one, Cain said.

Two of the youths were turned over to Fulton juvenile authorities, Cain related. He said the third is out of town with his family and will be picked up when he returns.

(Names of accused persons under 17 years of age are withheld in accordance with the Georgia juvenile court law.)

next project in line of priority should be the Piedmont avenue job because of the long delay on that job. Chairman White suggested, however, that the Moreland avenue job might be the next job in line.

In preliminary actions, the commission opened its meeting by setting 4 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month as its meeting time. The place was listed as the county administration building.

The commission also gave Chairman White authority to negotiate with three applicants for the job of commission director, who will be coordinating engineer and general administrator of bond commission work.

Top 2 Face Runoff at East Point

A city-wide election in East Point to fill a First Ward city council chair resulted in a runoff Tuesday between W. B. (Bill) Griffin and William A. Huff. The runoff will be held Sept. 10.

In a turnout of 1,101 of the city's 6,000 registered voters,

W. B. Griffin

W. A. Huff

Griffin led the four-man field with a total of 442 votes from the city's four wards. Huff, who has been serving as interim councilman since July 1, polled 312, while G. Roy Gunter and W. H. McElroy received 293 and 51 votes respectively.

The post was opened July 1 when A. L. Stanfield resigned to accept the city recorder position vacated by the death of Judge Walter Harclerode. Huff was appointed to fill the chair until the election. The unexpired term ends December, 1958.

BRIGHT COMEDY

Playhouse Has a Hit In 'Waltz'

The Arena Playhouse has done it again.

This week's production, "Anniversary Waltz," a rollicking three-act comedy, was exceptionally well received by an enthusiastic audience.

The play is a light farce concerned with the 15th wedding anniversary of Alice and Bud Walters (Ann Wickham and Robert Dane).

During the course of the family celebration, attended by Alice's parents and the two Walters children, some shocking and revealing secrets are released for the first time. It is on these revelations that the plot is based.

Special laurels go to newcomer Walter Head, who did an unexpectedly fine job as the grandfather.

"Anniversary Waltz" will play the Atlanta Arena Playhouse at 1150 Peachtree St., N.E., every evening through Sunday at 8:30 p.m. There will be matinees at 2:30 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The bidding:
North 1 no trump
East 3 hearts
South 5 hearts
West 6 hearts

Opening lead: Queen of spades.
The alarm contract today is eminently sound. Nothing more is required than a simple heart finesse and should that fall declarer has in reserve the not completely remote chance that the queen of diamonds will drop by the second round. In the absence of both these contingencies there is the chance for a three suit squeeze, a play which actually comes thru for declarer in this case.

After winning West's opening with the king of spades, declarer tries the trump finesse. When it loses, the spade ace is played and declarer ruffs the third round of that suit to make certain that only one of the defenders can protect spades.

After trumps are drawn the top diamonds are cashed, but no history is made. Yet declarer sees a chance. West presumably holds the spade honor. If East happens to have the diamond queen, each one will have to hold a stopper and no one will be left to protect clubs. With four tricks to go this is the end position:

When South plays the last trump, West must hold onto the ten of spades so he parts with a club. Declarer has no further use for the four of spades and lets it go. East is compelled to hold the diamond queen so he lets go a club and North scores the 12th trick with the nine of clubs.

Swedish Nudes Plan To Set an Example

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 13 (UP)—A congress of Sweden's 600 organized nudists has agreed to open a beach on the island of Bjorkoe in Lake Hjalmar where hundreds of Swedes spend their vacations every year. The nudists said the idea is to gain converts.

A Delicate Heart Operation Is Carol's Big Birthday Gift

Carol Kirk, a pert little East Point miss, expects to spend her eighth birthday Aug. 23 in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., recuperating from a delicate heart operation.

Mrs. Paul Kirk of 2686 Ben Hill Rd., East Point, left Atlanta by plane Tuesday for Rochester and the operation doctors have said she must have if she hopes to lead a normal life.

The Mayo surgeons are scheduled to operate Aug. 22 in an effort to correct Carol's enlarged heart, caused by a rare defect she was born with—an opening between the two upper chambers of the heart.

Unless the surgeons can successfully close the opening, doctors fear Carol's life expectancy is short.

Carol's operation will be financed by funds contributed by East Point friends of the Kirks.

When Carol was given an advance birthday party last week, nearly 100 well-wishers showered her with gifts, including a set of outfits for "Ginny," her favorite doll, to wear on the Minnesota trip.

When they arrived, detectives said, the husband was waiting at the front door with a loaded rifle and hunting knife.

Detectives said they instructed the woman to invite the youths over, then took up positions to wait. They said the trio walked up to the driveway, held a whispered conversation and then one strolled up to the door and knocked.

When the door was opened, detectives said, he waved to his companions and called out: "I'll see you boys later."

The third youth was a younger brother of one of the 14-year-olds, detectives said.

The three were turned over to DeKalb juvenile authorities.

JUDGES WORK LIKE DOGS CHASING FOX HOUNDS . . . A fox hunter's field trial differs from a regular fox hunt, the way a Miss America pageant differs from a walk down Peachtree on a windy day. This is magazine staff writer Andrew Sparks' conclusion after he went to the field trials of the North Georgia Fox Hunters Association last year in Cleveland, Ga. Next week, the hounds will be hollering again around the hills and valleys of Yonah Mountain competing for gold cups and trophies in this annual event.

3 Boys Held In Lewd Phone Call

Three boys Tuesday walked into a police trap and were held on charges of using obscene words over the telephone to a 35-year-old woman.

Detectives W. K. Perry and C. J. Strickland said two of the youths—both 14 years of age—had telephoned the home, made improper advances to the woman and asked permission to come over.

When they arrived, detectives said, the husband was waiting at the front door with a loaded rifle and hunting knife.

Detectives said they instructed the woman to invite the youths over, then took up positions to wait. They said the trio walked up to the driveway, held a whispered conversation and then one strolled up to the door and knocked.

LORD MAYOR HERE—London's Lord Mayor Col. Sir Cullum Welch, left, was briefed on Civil War lore by Atlanta's Mayor Hartsfield and presented with Confederate bills on his arrival in Atlanta Tuesday. Mayor Hartsfield told the visitor to save the money "in case the South rises again." "I certainly shall," Sir Cullum said. "Maybe on my next trip I shall be able to spend it." The English mayor also visited Gov. Griffin who named him a "Southern colonel."

Smyrna Council Refuses To Fire 3 Hit by Jury

By MARION GAINES
Constitution Staff Writer

SMYRNA, Aug. 13—Smyrna's city fathers, rebuffing recent criticisms by the Cobb County Grand Jury, Tuesday ruled against firing City Councilmen Murray Sonnenberg and Jim White and City Engineer Kenneth Pressley.

The Cobb jury last month recommended that the Smyrna council consider firing Pressley for showing "favoritism" to certain contractors. It also called for ousting the two councilmen for violating city charter provisions by doing business with the city.

A puzzled, perplexed citizenry jammed into Smyrna's tiny city hall and heard Councilman Jean Johnson declare, "I certainly would have some qualms about removing men that the voters themselves had put in office. I move that Mr. Sonnenberg and Mr. White retain their seats on council."

The motion was carried by a 2-1 decision, with Roy Wood voting with Johnson. White and Henry T. Westbrook, newly appointed to the council, abstained. Councilmen Sonnenberg and Mack Scarborough were absent.

Casting the lone "nay" was Councilman Norman Brenner, who summed up his opinion regarding all the grand jury recommendations: "I presume the grand jury made a thorough investigation of these matters and I don't see how we can pass over them."

The same council lineup gave engineer Pressley a 2-1 nod. Councilman Wood asserted that "no one has ever proven to me the city engineer has done anything wrong."

Mayor Jimmy Quarles said Sonnenberg and White probably had violated city charter provisions "inadvertently." He added, "I personally do not see removing two men from office who did not consider they were doing wrong."

Johnson's motion that the city terminate its contract with the A. V. Bolton Construction Co., as recommended by the Cobb jury, was withdrawn after heated protests from the audience.

One irate citizen told the council, "If those councilmen are allowed to stay on, and Bolton's contract is cancelled, then by inference he'll be the goat."

Ivan Allen Jr. Edges Hat To Edge of 1958 Ring

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Editor

It appears more and more probable that Ivan Allen Jr. will decide to enter next year's gubernatorial sweepstakes.

For the record, the Atlanta businessman says he's giving it serious consideration. But there are several signs pointing toward his entry.

He is currently making a vigorous tour of the civic club circuit, a normal "buildup" tactic of a prospective candidate. Allen will go into four south Georgia communities this week.

William M. Bates

He has hired an Atlanta public relations firm with political experience to handle his publicity.

The strongest indication yet may come in a few days if, as is presently expected, he hands in his resignation as president of the state chamber of commerce. He has told friends that he would do this if he decides to jump into the race.

SIGNIFICANT

It is perhaps significant that his entry now is predicted by most of the state's political pros who at first were inclined to doubt that he was serious about running.

The evaluation of his chances by the pros is something else again. Many of them don't give him a chance primarily because he is from Atlanta. This is especially true of those long associated with the Talmadge wing of Georgia politics; they simply don't believe an Atlanta man can win in a state whose politics are dominated by the rural counties operating through the county unit system.

But there is a minority group among the pros that gives Allen a fighting chance to be elected. They see certain factors that could overcome the Atlanta jinx. One of these is the program on which Allen would run. Its major premise will be that Georgia's overriding problem is that of bolstering the economy of the rural counties. He is known to be preparing a detailed program through which the state government would lead a vigorous drive to win small-town industry.

FARM DECLINE

With many rural counties suffering from declining farm income and shrinking population, it is the hope of the Allen boosters that the industrialization theme will strike a responsive chord with the people at the grass roots. Should his program catch on with the people, it is Allen's hope that the politicians—who naturally would be slow to line up for an Atlanta man—would come along.

Perhaps the biggest factor that could work in Allen's favor is the prospect of a bitter fight next year between followers of Sen. Talmadge and Gov. Griffin.

Such a fight appears well in the making. Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver, now the frontrunner, has the backing of a substantial number of Talmadge's leaders. And these are saying far and wide that Talmadge himself is in the Vandiver corner.

Former Highway Chairman Roger H. Lawson, on the other hand, is considered the candidate of the Griffin administration; it is generally believed the administration has decided to wage a major battle against Vandiver.

CHARLES GOWEN
A clash between the Talmadge and Griffin organizations, overlapping as they do, would provide an appealing opening for a third candidate with ties in neither camp. Such would be the case of Allen or Rep. Charles L. Gowen, however, is more likely to seek the lieutenant governor's office if he runs for anything next year.

Allen is fully aware of the uphill fight he would face. His toughest job would be to get himself

Georgia Tech Must Turn Out Engineers And Not Technicians, Dr. Harrison Says

Georgia Tech must be on guard against any "unwise expansion" of the student body, Dr. Edwin D. Harrison, the school's new president, declared Tuesday.

Harrison, who is only the sixth president in Tech history, said many young men, because of the current demand for engineers, are tempted to tackle the engineering field but actually do not possess the necessary qualifications.

"The existing need for technical personnel should be filled by schools like Southern Tech at Chamblee," he asserted.

"At Georgia Tech we want to turn out engineers, not technicians," he said.

Harrison arrived in Atlanta Monday night with his wife and two sons, Robert, 13, and Richard, afternoon with Georgia Tech deans and department heads in a series of "get-acquainted" conferences.

Singer 'Likes Hours'

By ELIZABETH MORGAN
"I just got up," explained singing star Fran Warren as she carefully ordered breakfast at 1:30 o'clock on a sunny afternoon.

"We were sitting on the porch (of the Georgian Terrace) until 4 a.m. discussing show business," she continued, "and phone calls have been waking me up all morning." The "we" meant the actors here for Theater-Under-the-Stars.

This week Miss Warren is starring in "Pajama Game," a show she played in on the road and Broadway for almost two years.

"I hate to get up in the morning," she said with a grin and a saucy toss of her head.

HER REASON

That aversion, according to Miss Warren, is the reason she went into show business. Once a national magazine asked her to write, in 1,000 words or less at the rate of 20 cents a word, why she had chosen a stage career. She wired back to the magazine, "I like the hours. You owe me 80 cents."

The 31-year-old blonde has liked the hours (and the work) well enough for the last 10 years to star in four Broadway musicals, play theaters and night clubs around the country, appear on television and in the movies, and make a large number of outstanding pop records. Her favorite recording is one of her all-time big hits—"Sunday Kind of Love"—with Claude Thornhill's orchestra.

The hazel-eyed native of New York's Bronx was a 16-year-old high school student on summer vacation when she got her first singing job with a local dance band. To this day she hasn't taken a voice lesson, but Miss Warren explained her success this way:

"Don't misunderstand, I'm

FRAN WARREN HERE FOR "PAJAMA GAME"
Broadway Singer Recreates Role

not knocking good training. But I've had something better than lessons—experience. Band leaders are willing to take a chance. At an audition, you just get up and sing. If you've got talent, the leader can hear it."

THEY HEARD

The leaders heard it, all right, and Miss Warren developed into a smooth song stylist with the World War II big name bands. As a child she liked to sing. And the pert, slender young woman plans to stay in show business "as long as the public wants" her.

YOUNG TRAVELER

Miss Warren first came to Atlanta nine years ago with a band that played for a dance at Georgia Tech. This time her husband, Harry Steinman, a night club owner, has come down with her for his first visit to Atlanta. Married seven years, the Steinmans have a three-year-old daughter named Jody Ann.

On long tours, Jody Ann usually travels with her mother, but this time she's staying home in the family's six-room Manhattan apartment on Riverside drive. Laughed Mother, "She's a big girl. She talks a lot—like Mommy."

Miss Warren likes to travel. "The most interesting thing," she said with sparkle, "is to go back. It's amazing the way a city grows . . . the picture improves each time."

The legitimate theater is Miss Warren's favorite show business medium. "I like to work with people," she said, "I like to reach people. An actor must have people." She hopes to do a Broadway show this fall.

And what's her favorite show? The energetic performer smiled, "I'm very partial to 'Pajama Game.'"

Celestine Sibley Mysteries In The Mountains

HOLLY CREEK—All you people out there where the paved streets, telephones, newspapers and mail service are, can worry about the state of the world, if you want to. Me, I've got something else to worry about—the strange case of the sourwood trees!

To quote a more meticulous observer and a greater authority than I, Mr. John Armstrong, the beekeeper:

Them rascals ain't bloomed a lick—and here it is August!

Now you may think the sourwoods can bloom or not bloom and it'll be no skin off your nose—but what about sourwood honey? There's not any out of this section of the mountains and there's not going to be any.

Mr. Armstrong has already put his beehives in his pick-up truck and hauled them back to Dalton. (He did this by the dark of night when the bees, weary from their fruitless search for sourwood, were sound asleep.) He came over yesterday to tell us he and Mrs. Armstrong are getting ready to leave their cool little cabin in the midst of the rhododendrons and seek employment in the heat of Dalton.

"If my bees can't work for me, looks like I'll have to get out and scuffle for myself," Mr. Armstrong observed sadly.

"Well, what about the fair?" I asked. "Don't you have even one bottle of sourwood honey you can send to the Mountain fair?"

He shook his head. "I got a little honey all right," he said. "It tastes pretty fair but . . . he looked embarrassed for his bees . . . it's dark."

Now that is the limit. Ever since we've been knowing Mr. Armstrong his bees have specialized in making honey the color of sunshine—pale, pale gold with a snowy white comb. It's true that they can make other kinds of honey, aster and poplar and apple blossom. But the prizes he has copped at the fair each year have been on his sourwood honey—the delicate flavored sweet the color of a baby's smile or an angel's halo.

We all nursed our coffee cups and looked gloomy with him. "What got into the sourwood?" I asked after a time.

"Don't know 'less it was them white moths that got the rest of the trees," the beekeeper said.

"Well, what kind of summer have you had otherwise?" I asked, seeking to cheer him up.

The beekeeper brightened. He did have news—not the kind you get on your television set or in your city papers but fascinating to us nonetheless. He had killed seven copperheads this summer, the most in all the years he has lived in the mountains. Somebody's been stealing dogwood out of the hills and selling it for pure gold in town, where there's a mill that specializes in making spindles for cotton mills.

"They got two or three of my trees," he reported. "And back over the mountain I saw where they had cut down and toted out a great big one. Now you know them things is heavy as iron and toting it out would be a job. Looks like . . ." he chuckled . . . "a feller would rather work than to do that!"

"Well, have they caught 'em?" I asked. "The dogwood thieves, I mean."

He shook his head. "Not yet. But they've made one misstep. They've been cutting on government land. Now the government's after them and when they get caught they'll wish they'd a worked!"

FABRICS IN FASHION, as seen by Parisian designer Manguin in his autumn collection, are delightfully elegant. For his slinky evening gown with the oriental touch, he chooses white silk muslin with gold and bronze embroideries and belt of brown mink. His black and red dress is embroidered with multicolored velvet motifs and is worn with a black velvet beret.

Standridge, Webb Plans Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Standridge of Austell announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris Faye, to Charles Bernon Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Webb of Mableton.

The wedding will take place Aug. 30 at Davis Chapel Baptist Church.

The bride-elect was graduated from South Cobb High School, and is employed by the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Mr. Webb, also a graduate of South Cobb High School, is employed by the Westinghouse Corp., Atlanta.

After their marriage, the couple will live in Austell.

Personnel Club Plans Outing

The Personnel Club will hold its annual summer outing Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Atlanta Paper Co.'s lodge on Allatoona Lake.

The affair will begin at 2 p.m., and dinner will be served at 6 p.m. Miss Bettye Johnson is in charge of arrangements.

No Idle Hours In Leisure Time

By AGNES GAINES

An Atlanta woman who doesn't like to be idle, even during her leisure hours, spends her spare moments hooking rugs.

Her job as a nurse at Piedmont Hospital doesn't leave Mrs. Mamie Kerslake much time for rug-making. But since 1941, when she hooked her first rug, she has made 48 in all sizes and patterns.

However, the energetic Mrs. Kerslake doesn't keep all her rugs. The majority of them she has given away to friends and relatives. She has also sold several. Most of the rugs are small, since they are easier to handle than the larger ones.

"I don't use a frame, just a wooden hook," she explained. "It's easier to do small rugs with a hook."

ATLANTAN HOOKS RUG FOR HER SON
Mrs. Mamie Kerslake Works on Mexicana Design

Lamenting the fact that she cannot draw, Mrs. Kerslake said, "I have to send off for most of my patterns, which are stamped on."

A friend of hers, who is an artist, drew several patterns for her. Her friends pick out a pattern they like and Mrs. Kerslake orders it and makes the rug to their specifications.

Worn-out skirts and sweaters and discarded wool bathrobes furnish most of the material she uses.

NO TROUBLE

"I never have any trouble finding material," she commented. "People save things for me and I pick up a good deal of it at rummage sales. I've got the closet packed with stuff now to go in rugs."

She prefers soft wool flannel to work with, since it handles easily. Of course, she cannot always find the material in the color she wants and has to dye some of it.

"But I've had real good luck on that," she said. "I haven't dyed much. I usually find the colors I need."

After the material is cleaned and dyed Mrs. Kerslake cuts it up in small strips. Then she uses her hook to pull the cloth up in loops, working it into the patterns she wants.

The brown-haired nurse estimated that it takes her around five days to make one small rug, working on it after work. She is hooking a rug now for her son, John, who is in the Air Force.

MEXICANA DESIGN

"The design is called Mexicana. He had one like it already and wanted another. I'm trying to get it off to him by the end of the week."

Pointing to the rich, black border around the rug, she said, "That was an old black coat of mine." The colors are predominantly bright purple and orange on a pure white background with the black border. To get the vivid colors, she had to dye the material.

Mrs. Kerslake still has the first rug she hooked. It is a series of blocks with designs in the center. Despite the fact that it is 16 years old, it is still bright and colorful.

A graduate of Georgia Baptist School of Nursing, Mrs. Kerslake also likes to cook and read.

"I like to have something to do all the time," she smiled. "I've never been idle and I do not want to be."

Strong Incentive Gives Will Power To Reduce

By IDA JEAN KAIN

For the person who has a great deal of weight to lose, real strength of character is needed to start reducing, and following through calls for staying power. But it's important to know that the secret of staying power is strong incentive. Analyzed, a strong incentive gives power to the will.

In today's letter, a 5-year-old, coming home in tears after fighting an older boy because he had made fun of his mother's size, motivated a young mother to resolute action. Her letter reveals an entirely new attitude toward reducing.

"I am 27, married, and have two children, a boy 5 and a girl 4. I've been on and off diets since I was nine, but never found a successful method of keeping off the lost weight. I think what kept me from succeeding was that I kidded myself into thinking that after I'd lost weight I could eat all the food my normal size friends enjoy. I felt sorry for myself every time I passed up high calorie dishes.

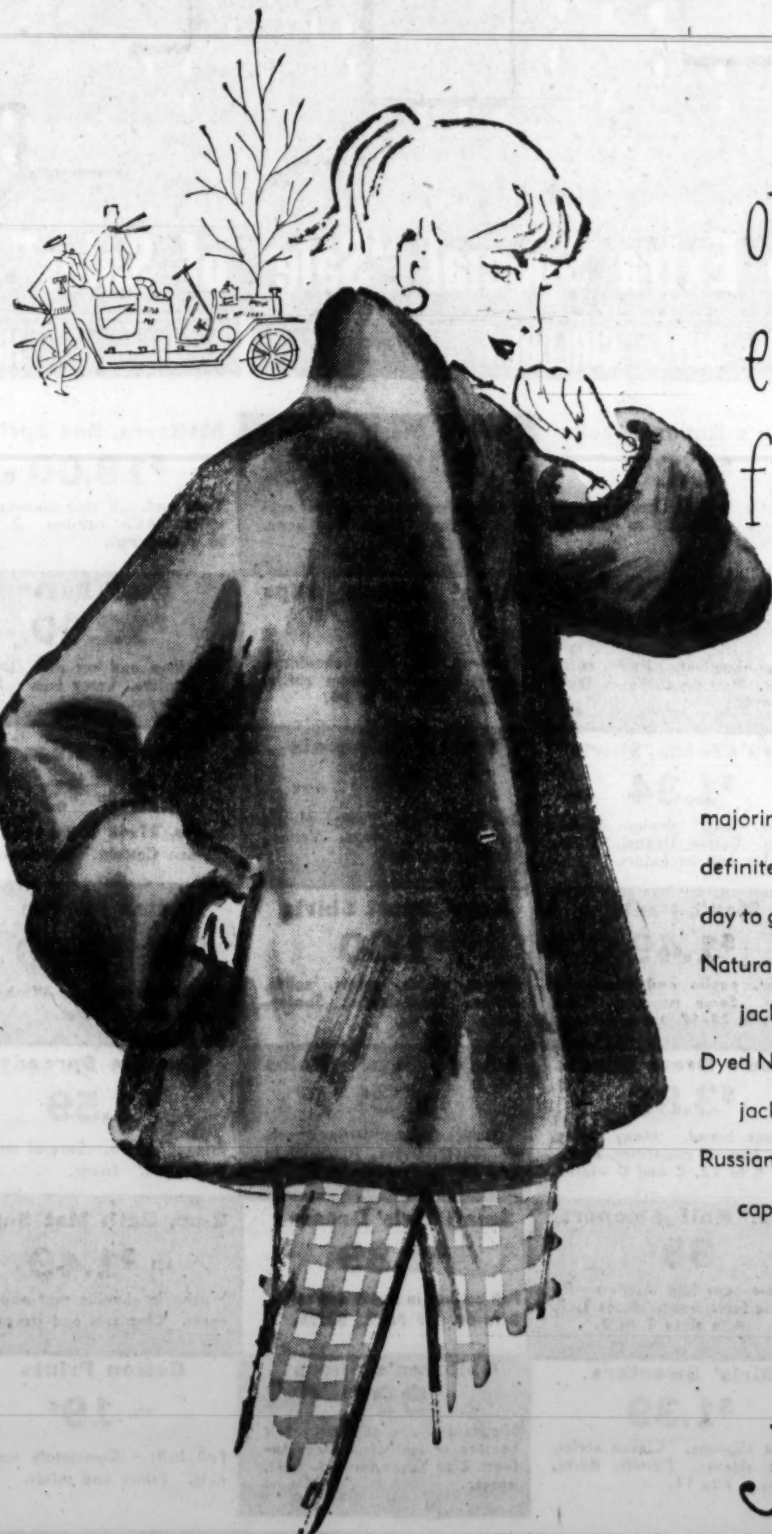

"When my 5-year-old son came home in tears after fighting an older boy who made fun of my size, I determined then I'd lose weight and that my son would never have to fight over me again.

"My doctor gave me a simple calorie list to follow, an appetite appeasement tablet for the first two weeks, and vitamin capsules. I see the doctor once a month for a check-up.

"I really thought hard about the cause of my overweight. I finally realized that I'll always have to avoid rich foods. Now when I refuse fattening foods, instead of feeling sorry for myself, I consider each refusal a fraction of a pound lost, and so a step in the right direction.

"I avoid thinking of my eating pattern as a diet. A diet is temporary—the way I'm learning to live now is permanent.

"In February I weighed 258 pounds and wore 26½ dress. Now I weigh 220 and wear size 22½. My goal is 135 pounds. I haven't set a definite time. I plan to go steadily along, living my new way."

Your Stars Today

Daily Guide—If this is not your vacation week, treat yourself to some recreation or slight change which will give you some of the benefits or reaction of a vacation.

It is a good time to ease up a little; slow down the pace if you can. How? There is an aspect today which favors seeking some new way to do old chores, of blending the traditional with the unconventional, of sharpening or spicing the old with wit and humor.

The Arians, Leos and Sagittarians can get things rolling smoothly today.

The Librans are just starting a year of a peak in popularity and prestige.

Happy Birthday, Leo! It would be wise not to try to hold on to anything or anyone at this time as many ties and conditions will be cut away. This is not necessarily bad as you will come to see when a new life opens up to you, giving you much greater personal freedom and a chance to grow individually.

You can be inventive, original, independent, but also don't forget the negative side—gratuitous, restless, incompatible. Don't get reckless, temperamental, or so conventional you can't adjust to present circumstances at all. There are several years of changes ahead.

Atlantans Return From Arctic Circle

By MARGARET McLEMORE

A group of Atlanta boys, students, Westminster School for Boys, have returned from an exciting three-month trip which took them to Alaska and the Arctic Circle.

The boys, chaperoned by Coach and Mrs. Loren Young of the School for Boys, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shields of the Middle School faculty, traveled over 12,500 miles by car and plane.

They mostly camped out or stayed in log cabins. Canoeing, Indian-style, climbing mountains and fishing, were daily pastimes, and even though the sun was bright at bedtime in the Land of the Midnight Sun, the boys had no trouble sleeping.

This party, which left Atlanta in June, included Jim Reinsch, Chock Roberts, Lee Spears, Alan Elsas, John Mullin, Peter Candler, Bill McKelvey and Paul Scoville.

Highlight of their trip was stops in Anchorage, Portage Glacier, Juneau and Ft. Yukon, which is above the Arctic Circle.

The group also toured Glacier and Yellowstone National Parks and the Grand Tetons, where the boys were entertained by a Los Angeles Girl Scout Troop, which was camping nearby.

ANOTHER WESTMINSTER party has been traveling in the British Isles. Miss Bernice Pickard, English teacher, has with her Jo Rhodes, Fran Lloyd, Jeanette Gordon and Barbara Hitchcock. They are to return to Atlanta Thursday. They also visited in Paris.

DUE BACK Aug. 20 are Louise Loomis and Ruth Rogers, Westminster graduates. They've been touring England, Holland, France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy. They're coming home on the Queen Mary. Their chaperon is Miss Joyce Thomas, English teacher, Westminster.

LAURA DORSEY, sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Dorsey Jr., and her cousin, Cornelia Campbell of Orlando, Fla., who has been her fete house guest, leave town tomorrow by plane for Hartford, Conn.

They will visit Lynne Gladfelter, who visited in Atlanta, last summer. The girls plan to stay a week in Hartford.

Laura's older sister, Mary Adair Dorsey, arrived home yesterday from her two-month tour of Europe with Laura Smith.

A FINAL SUNTAN will be acquired by a group of future debs before they leave for their freshman year at college.

Maxine Wellborn, Claiborne Smith and Mary Courts Wayne, leave Saturday by plane for Sea Island, where they will be house guests of Nan Atkins at Dr. and Mrs. Tommy Atkins' cottage.

The three women plans to return home the following weekend. Maxine will be a student at the University of Alabama; Claiborne is registered at Sweetbriar and Mary, along with Laura Smith, Louise Loomis, Gracie Woods, Wynn Conard and Susan White, will be freshman at Mount Vernon, Washington, D.C.

Former Atlantan, Eleanor McGinnis of Memphis, who's a frequent visitor to Atlanta, will also be a freshman at Mount Vernon.

DR. AND MRS. PAUL K. CALAWAY will desert Atlanta early in September for College Station, Texas, where Dr. Calaway, who has been at the helm of Georgia Tech's experiment station, will head the chemistry department of Texas A. and M. College.

Mrs. Calaway recently took their three children, Ken, Jody and Betsy, for a visit with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Fant, in Union, S.C.

The Calaways have already been to Texas and bought a home so the job of house-hunting is over.

DUE IN TOWN Friday, Aug. 23, are Lt. Thomas Gossage and his bride, the former Virginia Eastman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Eastman.

The newlyweds—they were married here two weeks ago—are coming because Mrs. Gossage will be an attendant in the wedding of Mary Gatewood and Alexander Lawrence Cann on Aug. 24th.

Their plans are to visit here only a few days as Lt. Gossage has to report back to Wright Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

A POSTCARD from Allen Post Jr., University of North Carolina student, expresses his sentiments on his European tour this way:

"Rome is beautiful; Alps are divine; Venice, enchanting; Florence, intriguing; London, marvelous; Switzerland, Germany, Austria, quaint; Copenhagen, delightful, and the trip is the experience of my life."

MRS. JOSEPH Q. BURTON has returned to her apartment in the Pershing Hotel after a month's vacation. She visited in Warm Springs and Hot Springs, Va., and was the house guest of former Atlantan, Mrs. B. B. Weaver in Lynchburg, Va.

FORMER ATLANTAN, John W. McDonough and his bride, the former Mrs. Philip Winston of Memphis, Tenn., are honeymooning at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. The prominent couple, who were married July 30, will live in Memphis.

Teen-age Mail

Her Pen Pal Letters Gave Wrong Impression

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I am a young teen-ager and have been writing to a serviceman who is overseas. His sister gave me his address. In my last letter to him I wrote, "I can't wait to see you, but in the meantime a picture would do." I said some other things on the same order.

I'll admit that what I wrote could give him the wrong impression. I guess it did, because he hasn't written in over two months.

I really don't know why I wrote in that way, or what I had in mind. He is coming home on leave soon and I'll have to see him. I would like for him to know that the meeting won't embarrass him.

Should I write and not mention my last letter, or what? If so, what can I say? I would still like to be his pen-friend. How can I get back on that basis?

It is a little late for you to profit by this advice, but it is always wise (when in doubt) to let a letter cool off overnight. Read it again the next morning and see if it still seems as right and proper as when it was first written.

I have received many letters from girls who have been writing to servicemen and by writing something they didn't mean, they wrote themselves right into the middle of a situation they couldn't handle. That is why I keep repeating, "Keep pen-pal letters on a strictly platonic basis."

That is also why I have made it a rule to never give out names or addresses of people who write to this column, for pen-pal purposes.

It is difficult to say just what you should do in this instance, but it might be wise to write the boy once more. Keep the letter friendly but impersonal. Mention how happy his family will be to have him home and, you might add, in an off-hand manner, "No doubt I probably will see you, at least

Now—so easy to be a blonde again!

Actually simpler than setting your hair!

If your hair was born to be blonde—and isn't—or if you're a brunette with blonde ambitions, Light and Bright by Richard Hudnut is for you. It's a home hair-lightener designed to bring out all the hidden gold in your hair . . . make you as blonde as you were born to be.

Light and Bright is so simple and easy to use; simpler, in fact, than setting your hair. No messy mixing. No complicated testing. No worrisome timing. And Light and Bright gives you genuine "color control!"

Light and Bright works so gently, so gradually, you don't have to worry about getting too blonde too fast. Each time you use Light and Bright your hair gets a little lighter and a little brighter. When you reach just the color that's right, you stop.

Light and Bright contains no ammonia. It's formulated with a special built-in conditioner. Wonderful, the way Light and Bright makes you a true, natural-looking blonde again . . . with lovely, shining-soft hair! And once this gentle home brightener has brought to light your real blonde-ness that mousey look is gone for keeps. Your new golden look won't wash out, won't fade. Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping.

Get a bottle today—be a blonde beauty again. Only $1.50 plus tax for Richard Hudnut Light and Bright available at every cosmetic counter.

Lt. Tartari Is Bride of Lt. Yaden

After a honeymoon in the Great Smoky Mountains, Lt. Jesse L. Yaden Jr. and his bride, the former Carmelita B. Tartari, lieutenant, Womens Army Corps, will live in Columbus, where the bridegroom will be stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Yaden Sr. who have returned after attending the military wedding in the First Regiment Chapel, Fort Jackson, S.C.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Odum Lipfert of Deland, Florida.

Chaplain Donald B. Hasten officiated at the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by Maj. Gen. N. A. Costello, commanding officer of Fort Jackson, wore a pink ballerina-length gown, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and gladioli. Her maid of honor was Lt. Martha E. Haren, Woman's Army Corps, Fort Jackson.

Capt. Charles F. Summers of Fort Jackson was best man. Ushers were Lt. Col. Hallie B. Henry and Lt. Bernard J. Wetherington, both of Fort Jackson.

The bride was graduated from John B. Stetson University, College of Law, and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta, the Florida Bar Assn., and Volusia County Bar Assn.

Lt. Yaden, a member of the U.S. Army Infantry, is a graduate of Young Harris Academy, Young Harris, Ga., and North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga. He served two years in Korea and has been stationed at Fort Jackson for the past two years.

MOTHER OBJECTS TO QUESTIONS SCHOOL ASKS
Girl Told Parents the Questionnaire Was "Stupid"

Marcia Winn

School's Questions Get Protest From Parents

Strange things happen in schools nowadays. A Minneapolis mother wrote me the other day enclosing a questionnaire given her 10th grade daughter.

The girl's parents learned of the questionnaire because their daughter came home one day and mentioned having been given a "very stupid" test about how she liked her home and family.

That night the parents approached the school principal before a PTA meeting and asked to see her paper. The principal said their daughter's test was locked up, but he had nothing to hide, so here was a copy of the test.

The father pocketed the copy, but reiterated his request to see his daughter's paper. The next day the girl was called to the principal's office. Surely, she was told, she didn't want her parents to see what she had written on that questionnaire, did she? Shouldn't they just tear it up? So—they tore it up.

THIRTY-FIVE QUESTIONS
The first part of the test contained 35 questions. Here are a few of them:

"Has either of your parents insisted on your obeying him or her regardless of whether the request was reasonable?"
"Do you feel your parents have been unduly strict with you?"
"Do you think your parents fail to realize you are a mature person and hence treat you as if you still were a child?"

"Does your mother tend to dominate the home?"

"Has either of your parents made you unhappy by criticizing your personal appearance?"

"Is either of your parents very nervous?"

"Have you frequently had to keep quiet or leave the house in order to have peace at home?"

"Have your relationships with your father usually been pleasant?"

"Have you felt that your friends have a happier home life than you?"

"Has either of your parents frequently found fault with your conduct?"

"Is your father what you would consider your ideal of manhood?"

"Did you ever have a strong desire to run away?"

"Has either of your parents frequently criticized you unjustly?"

"Do you love your mother more than your father?"

DO THEY ANGER EASILY?
"Do you feel there has been a lack of love and real affection in your home?"

"Have you often felt that neither of your parents understood you?"

"Does either of your parents become angry easily?"

"Has either of your parents certain personal habits which irritate you?"

"Is either of your parents very easily irritated?"

"Has either of your parents dominated you too much?"

The directions to students began with, "This is your opportunity to help in a research study."

"As a parent," the Minneapolis mother wrote, "I object to this type of testing. I believe it is the most negative approach possible to solve problems. It only makes the child think he has problems that did not exist before."

"The questions, you will notice, are in general both misleading and negative. Check enough unhappy home life ones, and you get a counselor."

"Some of the counselling," the mother concluded, "has actually alienated children from their parents. The students are subtly taught that the counselors are experts at the same time they are led to believe their parents are incompetent."

WORMS

MAY BE A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms or Round Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the intestines where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's tablets do... and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredients go right to work—kill Worms quickly and easily. Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. At the first sign of Pin-Worms or Round Worms, ask your druggist for Jayne's P-W or R-W... the small, easy-to-take tablets perfected by famous Dr. D. Jayne & Son and their successors, specialists in worm remedies for over 100 years.

Calendar Features Local Color

By YOLANDE GWIN

When it comes to rushing the seasons, it seems to be a neck 'n neck race with the greeting card people and the calendar makers.

Just released is The Flower Arrangement Calendar for 1958 and it is splashed with local color. With the temperature in the high 90's it seems nice to note that the first page—for January—carries an illustration of a winter time arrangement called "Looking to the Future."

It is done by Mrs. Archie H. Comer, of Marietta, a well known blue ribbon winner in local shows. Mrs. Comer is dividing her time now between Marietta and Coral Gables and the picture carries the identification of her affiliation with the Coral Gables Garden Club. The arrangement is a crystal container, which Mrs. Comer thinks is proper for peering into the future. It contains striped pandanus and an orchid.

January's second page features a photograph of an arrangement by Mrs. John W. Thompson of the Creative Study Club of Atlanta. Called "A Form of Driftwood Rhythm," it contains driftwood from the shore and the seed pods from the palm tree. The pod spray is fastened with floral clay.

An arrangement by Mrs. Comer again is featured on the last dated page of February. This one is called "Flying Missile," and was inspired by the tall tales pilots tell of the strange and beautiful things they see floating through the air. Mrs. Comer made a missile of her own with bryophyllum which she found well formed by nature. She chose white poinsettias from her Florida garden and added fish tale palm to anchor the missile until flight time. A brown finished burl of ample proportions creates balance.

"Twilight in the Garden" illustrates the second week in August and is the work of Mrs. Thompson. A flower show theme is interpreted as "Egret Symphonique" and was arranged in a lighted niche. Gray coastal driftwood makes bold tree-like shelter for the white porcelain egret in the waterside garden. There are three heads of water grass, stag-horn fern, and a mound of white coral.

The Calendar, with text by Helen Van Pelt Wilson, is filled with pictures of arrangements made by garden club members through out the nation.

6 at Clinton File Motion For Retrial

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 13 (UP)—Written motions for a new trial were filed in U.S. District Court today by attorneys for six Clinton residents convicted in the historic Clinton integration trial.

The six were convicted last month of conspiring with segregationist John Kasper to halt classroom integration at Clinton, Tenn., High School.

Jack Kershaw, Nashville, executive secretary of the Tennessee Federation for Constitutional Government, filed the motions with the court clerk.

Among reasons listed for seeking a new trial were that there were errors in Judge Robert L. Taylor's charge to the jury that the court erred in allowing a movie shown as evidence of conspiracy, and that Judge Taylor erred in allowing the government to intervene in the original suit.

The attorney for Kasper, who also was convicted during the trial, filed for a new trial earlier this week.

Judge Taylor has not set a date for hearing arguments on the motions.

Graham Asks Teens To Try Christ's Way

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham advised the nation's youth tonight to take up the Christian way of life and form clubs for Christ.

"It will give you a new challenge for life, something for you to do," said Graham.

"Put the principles of Christianity to work, but don't come to Christ if you're lazy. There is no room for the loafer in His army," he said.

A high percentage of teen-agers was evident in the evening's capacity crowd of 18,500 that filled Madison Square Garden. Graham's sermons this week are devoted exclusively to the problems of young people.

Graham's call for "decisions for Christ" brought forth 720 persons, raising the over-all total of such decisions to 45,864. Attendance now totals 1,512,000.

A. E. Colbert, 54, Found Dead by Vining Tracks

MARIETTA, Aug. 13—The body of an Atlanta man was found Tuesday near Vining by a railroadman on a passing train.

Cobb County detectives said A. E. Colbert, 54, of 1604 Woodbine Ave., SE, in Atlanta, apparently had been dead since Sunday. There was no indication of violence, said detectives M. L. McLarty and Ralph Spratt.

Cobb County Coroner John Carney said a decision on whether to hold an inquest will be made after he receives a report from the county medical examiners.

An unidentified NC&StL Railroad employee spotted the body at 11:40 a.m. Tuesday about 15 feet from the track.

Colbert was last seen Sunday morning by Charlie Byrd, with whom Colbert lived while working at a broom manufacturing company.

Surviving are his wife; daughters, Mrs. Margaret Walker and Mrs. Mariam Clark, both of Atlanta; sons, Leland Colbert of Ohio and Dennis Colbert of Illinois; sister, Mrs. Lola Foster of Cornelia, and brothers, Clyde Colbert and Roland Colbert, both of Atlanta.

Grant Park Monkeys To Get a $450,000, Wired-for-Sound Home

Grant Park's monkeys, casting envious glances at the new homes of the elephants, lions and tigers, needn't fear they'll be left out in the cold.

Bids for construction of an ultramodern $450,000 monkey house at Grant Park Zoo will be taken by January, according to the Aldermanic board's parks committee.

The building is expected to be ready for monkey business about a year later.

The monkey domicile will be "the finest and most modern in the country," Alderman Charlie Leftwich, parks committee chairman, declared.

Serving to keep the monkeys separated from the people, and vice versa, will be three-quarter-inch glass cage fronts. A slight electrical current will flow through a thin metallic substance on the glass. This will keep funny faces on both sides from being pressed flat.

Leftwich said the glass will make the cages almost sound-proof, in addition to confining nearly all the monkeys' order within their house.

A further refinement will enable the monkeys to sound off whenever they feel like it, Leftwich said. Public address amplifying systems in each cage will broadcast the monkeys' orations to their human audiences.

Lead a Child To Prayer

QUESTION: Sometimes our little boy refuses to say his prayers. What should we do then? T.W.

ANSWER: Don't try to force your child to pray. Every night set aside 15 minutes or half an hour before his bedtime for reading and conversation. Show your child pictures of Jesus, and tell him stories of the Savior. Talk to him of the Heavenly Father. Explain to him God sends the sun and the rain. Tell him it is God who makes the flowers grow, and gives us food to eat.

Let your child hear you pray, using simple words he can understand. Say, "I like to thank God for the good things He's given me." Do this for a few days. Then some evening when you've finished praying, ask, "Isn't there something you would like to thank God for?" If your child says only a few words, be content.

There is no better way to encourage a boy or girl to pray. Later you'll want to teach your child to ask God to forgive the mistakes he's made, and to pray for strength to do what is right. But don't be impatient, or try to force your little one. Let him hear you pray. Surround him with love. Tell him of Jesus and the Heavenly Father. And soon he'll want to express his thoughts in prayer.

Mayor To Fete Gen. Albrecht

Mayor Hartsfield has invited a score of leading Atlantans to a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Thursday at the Capital City Club to honor Maj. Gen. Frank M. Albrecht, newly assigned division engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"I hope we will give Gen. Albrecht, our distinguished new citizen, the welcome to which he is justly entitled," Hartsfield said.

The Lecturers Talk

Bear Bryant, who coaches football and can't seem to escape basketball, was listening to a baseball game Tuesday afternoon when George Mikan and Bowden Wyatt walked into his room at the Biltmore.

The Texas A&M boss turned the volume knob on his radio, glanced up at the 6-9 Mikan and remarked, "When the wrangling starts, I'm going to be on your side."

Outlar

Mr. Basketball, who is co-starring on the cage lecture rostrum with Ken Loeffler, a former resident of Aggie land, chuckled and announced that he was down to a streamlined 275.

"I came up here to get you football coaches to give me some pointers on blocking to use in pro basketball," Mikan said.

He was kidding, of course, but he had come to the right quarters, for Bryant and Wyatt are charter members in the hit 'em hard school of football.

The highly successful Aggie and Tennessee coaches are airing their views on football as star lecturers at the annual GACA shindig.

At the moment, however, they were talking about basketball. "I tried to play the game at Alabama," Bryant said, "but I wasn't any good."

He slyly noted that he had seen some games at Kentucky when he was coaching football there.

Mention of Adolph Rupp produced a quick smile and started Mikan's memory wheels turning.

"What a guy," he said. "I remember when I was a freshman at DePaul, and we beat Kentucky. Rupp said he wasn't going to play any more until I graduated."

—The Faculty Did an About-Face

"Adolph is quite a guy," Bryant said. "I remember once at Kentucky the faculty decided to investigate sports. They appointed a committee to call on Adolph."

"Before they got out of there, Adolph had investigated them. He told an English professor that he had sent several bright young men over there who flunked. He wanted to know what was the matter? 'You don't see any of my players flunking basketball, do you?' he inquired."

The photographer arrived, snapped a picture, and Mikan and Wyatt departed, allowing Bear to focus his attention on the Game of Day. The Cubs were playing St. Louis, and Bryant's interest provided positive proof that he is an avid baseball fan. While in the city, he hopes to see Jerry Nelson, the Cracker pitcher, who was chunking for A&M when Bear moved to Aggie land.

Earlier in the day, Bryant, who has no intention of retiring, had talked about the coming season in the Southwest. He said most of the experts were picking Baylor to win the title, with the Aggies second. Bryant was making no predictions. For the information of Georgia fans, he said that Darrell Royal had inherited a terrific band of sophomores at Texas.

After walking out on the Cubs and Cards, Wyatt sat down for a chat about the forthcoming SEC football race.

Graduation stripped the defending champion Vols, and Wyatt says he honestly doesn't know what type of team he'll field.

"We won't know until the season starts," he said. "But we certainly won't have to wait long to find out, for we meet Auburn in the first game."

—Championships Are a Wyatt Trademark

"Auburn should be up there," Wyatt continued, "and Mississippi may be right in it. I think Kentucky will have a good team, and they say that LSU may be a surprise. Tech's probably in the same boat with us. Bobby Dodd has a lot of young players who'll have to come through."

I don't know anything about the brand of material Wyatt has in the Vol corral, but you can rest assured that Tennessee will have another well coached team.

Wyatt is one of the most successful coaches in the game; perhaps the best of the younger crop. After earning his All-America credentials as an end at Tennessee, Bowden passed the acid test as a head coach by producing championship teams at Wyoming and Arkansas, a couple of institutions accustomed to the football cellar. He was named Coach of the Year last season after the Vols took 'em all during the regular campaign. They beat Tech in the big one at Grant Field, but lost to Baylor in the Sugar Bowl.

A large and attentive audience of high school and college coaches sat in on Wyatt's kickoff lecture Tuesday at the Biltmore.

He outlined the practice schedule employed at Tennessee, and expounded on some of his pet theories. In brief, Bowden's success formula boils down to a well conditioned team thoroughly schooled in fundamentals.

"Condition breeds morale," he told the coaches. "I don't want the type of boy who doesn't want to play football, regardless of his ability. The boy you have to build a fire under will pull over and let the wagon burn."

No wagon ashes have been uncovered on Wyatt's coaching trail.

GEORGIA PREP SPORTS HALL OF FAME WELCOMES SIX NEW MEMBERS

Six 'Breed of Champs' Join Georgia's Prep Hall of Fame

Doyal, Staples, Thomason, Roberts Among Honorees

"Maybe you've noticed in men of renown, they never choke up when the blue chips are down."

Shorty Doyal, Eric Staples, Stumpy Thomason, Harold McNabb and Charlie Roberts passed in review to the tune of these words Tuesday night into the Georgia Prep Sports Hall of Fame.

John Carson's father Ben represented his son in the march to athletic immortality.

The records of the six and their efforts toward the advancement of high school sports in Georgia are so tremendous, it might seem speaker Rex Enright, South Carolina's athletic director, would have been unable to find the right words. But he did, with a bit of borrowed verse aptly titled "The Breed of a Champion."

There were others honored at the 20th annual Georgia Athletic Coaches Assn. banquet who have shown championship qualities ... many others.

Among them were the Georgia high school coaches of the year, Frank Inman of Augusta's Richmond Academy for football and Charlie Hall of Decatur for basketball. Regional coach of the year plaquards were delivered, too.

Doyal was introduced by Hall of Fame Honors Court member Thad Horton as the "long, tall gentleman who's sung bass at many a football victory party ... his name almost means football in Georgia."

Of old Atlanta Tech High great Thomason, these words came ... "One of the finest running backs

Charlie spoke for the modest group when he said, "I know there are others who deserve this honor more." But none of the record crowd at the Biltmore could think of anybody who did.

Bears Nip Crackers In 10 Innings, 5-4

Montag's HR Ties It in 9th

By AL THOMY

There were no more comebacks left in Atlanta bats, and one more in Mobile switches Tuesday night at Ponce de Leon Park.

Result: The Bears edged the Crackers, 5-4, in 10 innings before 3,237 of the faithful and made it two straight over the men of Buddy Bates, who are desperately fighting to stay in the Southern Assn. pennant race.

This losing effort dropped the Crackers another half game below Nashville and Memphis. Atlanta is now two and a half places behind first-place Vols and a full length in arrears of the second-place Chicks.

Cracker hitters, particularly Billy Reynolds and Bob Montag, gallantly closed the gap to 4-4 by the bottom of the ninth, but Corky Valentine, fifth Atlanta pitcher to appear on the hill, wasn't up to protecting the prosperity, and Vern Grace's two-out single in the top of the 10th brought home the winning run.

Reynolds drove his third home run of the season into the area box for the big run, and the Bears' 16th hit, all singles.

Bates threw 16 men into the battle, but to no avail as the five pitchers failed to hold the line. Don Nottebart couldn't get anyone out in the first, and the Bears pushed across three runs before Jerry Nelson came to the rescue with the aid of a double play.

He went out for a pinch-hitter in the fourth, and Paul Cave creditably worked two scoreless rounds. Lefty Bob Hartman was next, and he was rocked for a run in the seventh as Mobile took a 4-2 lead.

Then came the supreme effort by Reynolds and Montag, and the big letdown in the 10th.

Rodemeyer, the victim of Montag's smash, was the winner in relief. Gene Lary started, and worked in front of the Crackers until lifted after Reynolds' drive.

Rodemeyer is now 10-10 for the season.

The Crackers had plenty of hits—13 in all—but couldn't solve Lary or Rodemeyer at opportune times.

The first round was a nightmare. Four hits and three walks the Bears got, and the Crackers were lucky to get out with only three runs against them. Ralph Rowe singled in one, and Jack Baumer two.

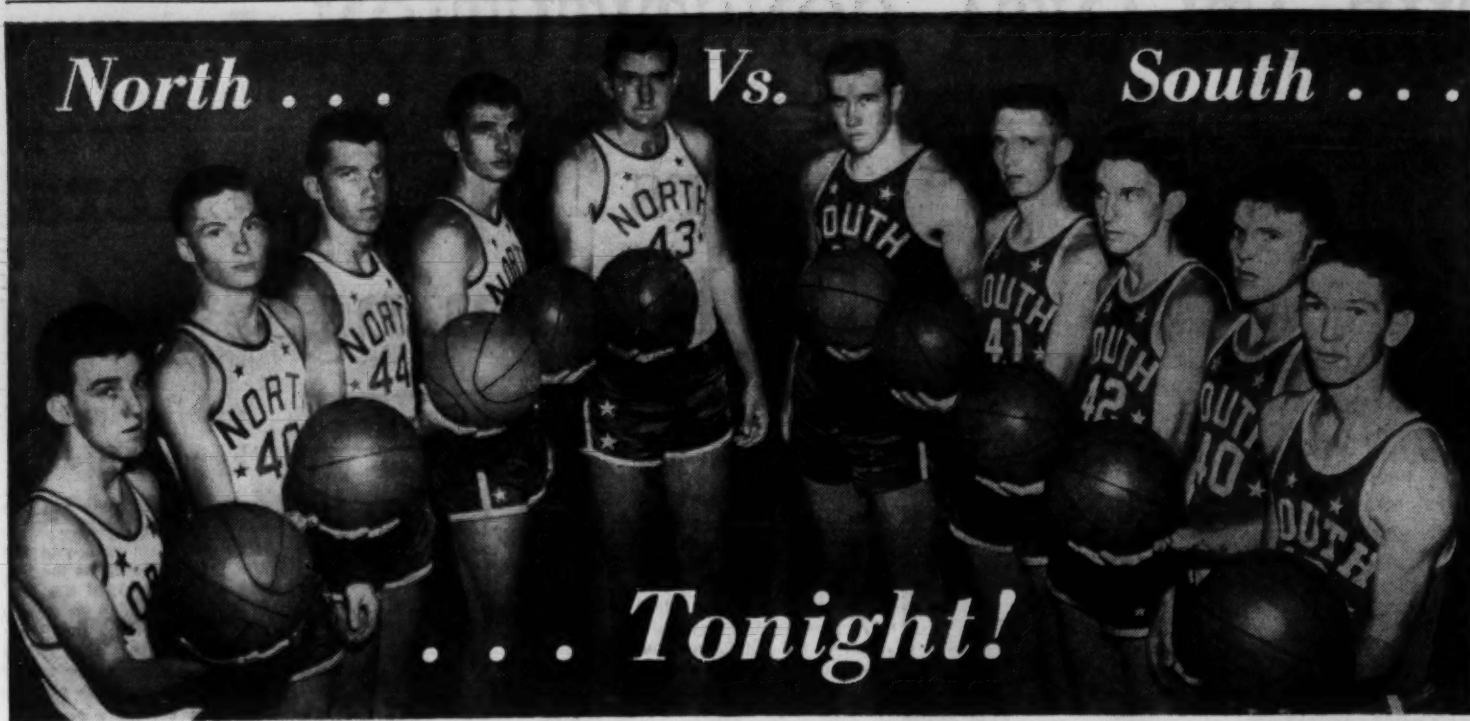

It was 3-1 after the third when Frank DiPrima doubled in Sammy Taylor, who had beat out an infield chopper, and 3-2

USGA RULES MANLEY FROM AMATEUR LIST

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—Hobart Manley Jr. of Savannah, Ga., has been ruled a non-amateur by the U.S. Golf Assn. for accepting expenses to the British Amateur tournament in 1952.

The USGA made the announcement today in a terse, three-line statement. No other details were given.

Manley was an outstanding amateur golfer a few years ago. Recently he has not been active in competition.

The suspension is for an indefinite period. Manley may apply for reinstatement, in which case he might have his standing restored by the USGA executive committee.

The Georgia golfer won the North and South Amateur championship at Pinehurst, N.C., in 1951, beating Billy Joe Patton in the finals.

He played in the British Amateur at Portcawll, Wales, in 1951, losing in the first round, and in the British Amateur at Prestwick, Scotland, in 1952.

It was the latter tournament which came under the investigation of the USGA.

The USGA said Manley was suspended on information which he himself had supplied golf's ruling body.

Redlegs Fall In 12-4 Tilt

Braves took over the lead in the fifth punching out three runs on four hits and a bad throw by Red.

The Reds climbed even, 4-4, in leg Frankie Robinson to the plate. The fifth when Alex Grammas drew a walk and first-sacker George Crowe lifted a homer over the right-field fence.

The Braves went on to add four more insurance markers. One came in the eighth on two singles and Crowe's miff of a relay, and three more came across in the ninth on five hits.

Bramlett and Sharp Readied As Farmer FB Replacement

Paris May Open At North LHB

By JIM CARSON

Fullback Bob Farmer, a young man who came to the North All-Star camp as a replacement and made everybody glad he did, may need a replacement.

The Elberton strongboy missed Tuesday's practice sessions at Rose Bowl Field and North All-Star coach Doc Ayers began thinking in terms of the North All-Stars without Bob Farmer.

Farmer twisted a foot in Sunday drills and had to call it quits for the day, but Ayers didn't become overly concerned until Tuesday. Farmer's foot had not mended well enough to take part in drills.

If there is any optimism on the condition of Farmer's foot, however, it is from Farmer himself. A man upon whom Ayers has placed much running and defensive burden says he will be ready. Ayers only hopes he will.

Farmer has worked overtime soaking his foot in hot water and Ayers said Tuesday "he wants to play so bad I don't see how we can keep him out of the game."

Should there be no Farmer on Grant Field Thursday night against the South All-Stars, the North will go with Rockmart's Earl Bramlett or Northside's Robert Sharp at fullback.

"Sharpe is quick hitting the holes," Ayers said, "but neither of these boys matches Farmer's power and, of course, Farmer is our No. 1 linebacker."

With 90-plus temperature chasing both squads off the practice field with only short sessions Tuesday, both coaches still had unanswered questions in their mind.

Ayers still must decide on his starter at left halfback. On the list are Gainesville's Tommy Paris, Dalton's Oscar Camp and Carrollton's Jimmy Morrow.

The North mentor indicated Paris may have the edge on his defensive ability. "I know Morrow and Camp are both small boys," Ayers said, "but we think they are both mighty fine runners. And Sulzer (Louis of North Fulton) has looked better every game. They'll all be playing."

Across the fence South coach West Thomas was still busy with his puzzle . . . fitting replacements for his long list of injured.

The replacement list included end Joel White of LaGrange, tackle John Reckling of Benedictine, center Albert Howard of Jesup and backs Vernon Prather of Boys Catholic and Bill Curtis of R. E. Lee.

White, one of the smallest men on either squad at 155, stepped into a fast company of fine pass receiving ends. Waycross' Ronnie Hinson, Commercial's Billy Phillips and Richmond's Jimmy Smalley are all good targets for quarterback Coley Cassidy (Statesboro), Robert Johnson (Valdosta) and Charlie Rose (Jesup). But White comes with a specialty of his own . . . rugged defensive play.

Thomas sent the South Stars through some kicking drills Tuesday. Cairo's Bobby Walden and Phillips were doing the punting, Cassidy and R. E. Lee's Jimmy Wood were practicing kickoffs and Cassidy, Wood and Walden all worked on extra point kicking.

With the weatherman's promise of another scorching day Wednesday, both coaches plan to windup drills with less than one hour sessions in shorts.

Wilson Takes Lions Job, Denies Parker's Charges

Louis Terms Patterson Defense

Worst Mismatch in Boxing History

From Press Dispatches
The Detroit National Football League Lions, coachless for a little over 12 hours with Buddy Parker's resignation, named George Wilson head coach Tuesday, and immediately Wilson roared disapproval of Parker's reason for resigning.

Parker, in tendering his resignation at a "Meet the Lions" banquet.

Sports in Brief

quet Monday night, claimed his material for 1957 "good" but alleged "there has been no life . . . no go . . . it's a completely dead team."

"This season's camp has been A-Number One all the way," Wilson contended. "I don't agree with Buddy. I don't know why he would make a statement like that. There just couldn't have been any difficulty between Buddy and the players."

BASEBALL—A Milwaukee specialist estimated that Braves' first baseman Joe Adcock would be ready for limited duty with the club in a week to 10 days and that Billy Brant could start workouts in two or three weeks. . . . Yankee pitcher Don Larsen received his final divorce decree. His wife, Vivian, had been sued on grounds of mental cruelty and desertion. . . . Cincinnati officials are negotiating for a five-year lease at Laredo, Tex., for a minor league training base. If successful, this would likely mean the organization will drop its Douglas, Ga., base . . . Kansas City picked Jimmy Gleason, former A's scout, as coach to fill the vacancy created when Harry Craft was moved to the manager's spot.

TENNIS—Georgians fared well in the Palmetto tournament at Belton, S.C. Bob Nichols of Atlanta stopped Bobby Austell, 6-2, 6-4, in the men's singles; Buzzy Cowart of Atlanta routed Jay Simpson, 6-2, 6-3, in the junior boys but Bob Hardcastle was an 8-6, 6-3 loser in the same division; Atlantans Caryl Lenahan vision; Atlantans Ruth Knight lost, 6-1, 6-0, in the women's singles; and Sandra Atkinson won in the junior girls. Lenahan handled Margaret Horner, 7-5, 6-3, and Atkinson disposed of Dasha Morgan, 6-1, 6-1; Bonneau Ansley of Atlanta rapped Dave Simpson, 6-1, 6-1, in the boys' singles but two Athens youths, Ham Magill and Charles Hooper were losers. Magill was clipped by Woody Cleveland, 6-3, 6-1, and Hooper lost to Jim Causey, 6-3, 6-0.

MISCELLANY—Former heavy-weight champion Joe Louis called the Floyd Patterson-Pete Rade-macher match "the worst mismatch in boxing history." He said, "Every boxing commission and fight fan in the country ought to protest it."

Richards, Keiser Lead Stars to Dome

Hall-Coached North Faces Two of State's Top Scorers

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

This night of Wednesday, Aug. 14, 1957, in Atlanta has been set aside to cheer the long of limb, lean of body, stout of heart and short of pants at Alexander Memorial Coliseum.

Georgia Tech's cyclodial castle will ring to the cheers of a basketball-hungry crowd for the first time since its rafters reverberated the yells of the 17,000 who paid to watch the play in the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored state Class AAA tournament in early March.

The occasion is the North-South All-Star classic, co-sponsored by the Georgia High School Assn. and the Georgia Athletic Coaches Assn., a pretty bauble that festoons the state's 20th annual coaching clinic.

Nine of 20 players, carefully selected from among Georgia's most glittering senior hardwood shiners, are veterans of that AAA war that marked the first and last appearance of high school cage gladiators under the "Big Dome."

Eight of those nine will be in the starting lineups, four on each team. The other, Glynn Academy's six-foot Billy Ploeger, will not start only because of foot blisters that slowed his development in week-long pre-game practice sessions.

Most ostentatious of the eight are the South's 6-7 Wayne Richards, twice leading scorer in the AAA tournament and 1957 Most Valuable Player award winner, and 6-4 Don Keiser, state leading AAA scorer in regular season with a 23.5 points-per-game average. It was Keiser who shot 26 points in the tourney finals to net Decatur a 61-51 victory over Richards' Richmond Academy and the Bulldogs' first state cage diadem in history.

Other AAA tourney gladiators returning to the scene of their spring madness and moments of glory are Benedictine's Pat Casey (6-3), Lanier's W. L. Shepard (6-2) and Baker's Gordon Darrah (6-0) of the South, and Murphy's Milton McRee (6-5), Decatur's Roger Couch (6-4) and West Fulton's Jerry Cole (5-10) of the North.

The other South starter will be 6-0 Bobby Dews, who averaged a stratospheric 38.4 points a game for little Edison. This quiet son of the Southern League's onetime "barefoot catcher" is one of Georgia's most remarkable all-round sports stars.

The fifth North starter is Kemuel Shipp, 6-8 Sprayberry High product, a University of Kentucky-bound cage nifty who averaged 21, 27 and 29 points a game for his three varsity years.

Other sparklers who will dribble in the interest of the South are Jack Mixon (5-11), speedy guard for Vienna's two-times state C champs; Jimmy Beatty (6-1), ball-handler deluxe for always tough Eric Staples-coached Perry; Terry Allen (6-1), who led Nahant to the state B semifinals, and Harold Hammock (6-0), fanciest of Swainsboro's talented hoopsters.

The North will counter with Larry Ruff (6-3), who made

CARDS, BUMS AND CO. TRAIL 'CONFIDENTLY'

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—"Our morale is still high."

This identical quote emanated from four different National League camps today. The Cards, Dodgers, Redlegs and Phillies who, currently, are trailing the runaway Milwaukee Braves by 5½, 6½, 7 and 9 games, respectively.

The morale is about the only thing that can be classified as "up" for the Cards, Dodgers, Redlegs and Phillies who, currently, are trailing the runaway Milwaukee Braves by 5½, 6½, 7 and 9 games, respectively. The feeling is that the four Milwaukee-chasers must make up some of the lost ground during the next six days or else they will have to wait until the next year. During the past week these clubs have done their pursuing in a disorderly retreating fashion. The Cards lost 6½ games to the Braves, the Dodgers 5½, the Reds 4 and the Phillies 5.

A week ago the Cardinals were in first place in the most exciting pennant race the National League has had in years. No more than three games separated the first five clubs. Today, by virtue of a seven-game winning streak, the Braves have taken the most commanding position any club has had all year. With the punishing home stretch still ahead, it would be foolish to say the Braves are in but should they increase their already imposing advantage in their tough series with the Cards and Reds this week, the home stretch may become a joyride. From now through Sunday, the Braves will play four games with St. Louis and three with Cincinnati. At the same time Brooklyn and Philadelphia will be meeting the second division New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates. When the Cards and Reds are not playing the Braves, they will be the guests of the last-place Chicago Cubs.

have lost six in succession, tumbling out of the top spot.

"Milwaukee is hot right now," he said, "and I look for them to cool off a bit. But we can't afford to wait for them to come back to us. We've got to start winning—and right now."

Birdie Tebbets faces an even bigger problem. His Reds, who have lost six of their last 10, must not only regain their winning habit but must learn how to beat the Braves. Cincinnati has won only two of 13 meetings with Milwaukee.

Practically in the same boat is Walter Alston, whose Dodgers have done comparatively well against the Braves, seven victories in 16 games. The Dodgers, however, have lost seven of their last 11 games.

"We'll have to play better ball than we have been playing if we are to get back into contention," sighed Alston as he enjoyed a day of relaxation at Bear Mountain Inn yesterday. "Of the six games left with Milwaukee we'll probably have to win as many as five."

"We just can't beg or pray for the other fellows to help us. In this kind of league we have all we can do to beat those other fellows ourselves, and we have not been doing it lately."

Moore Favored Over Mexican Champ Tonight

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP)—Davey Moore, sixth-ranking featherweight contender from Springfield, Ohio, is favored to spoil the U.S. debut of Mexican featherweight champion Victor Manuel Quijano at War Memorial Auditorium tomorrow night.

The 23-year-old scrappers, each boasting modest winning streaks, clash over the 10-round route. The bout will be telecast—ABC-TV—coast to coast.

Moore, a squat, boxer-puncher, has swept three in a row this year. His victory over Panama's Isidro Martinez at Washington, July 5, shot him into the No. 6 position among the contenders.

Although he has won his last 9-5 underdog because he has met six fights Quijano was made the lesser known fighters than Moore.

Rivera, Lollar, Drogo Back
Pierce in 16th Victory

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13 (AP)—Four home runs—two by Jim Rivera and one each by Sherm Lollar and Walt Drogo—gave the Chicago White Sox a 10-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians tonight. It was the Indians' fifth straight loss.

The heavy slugging helped Billy Pierce to his 16th victory against eight losses. He needed relief from Gerry Staley.

All of Chicago's runs came on homers. Rivera's pair of round-trippers accounted for five and Lollar's homer drove in three more off Indian starter Ray Narleski.

The converted reliever, the ace of crippled Indians pitching staff, took his second defeat in 11 decisions.

Pierce had shut out the Indians on two hits until the seventh. Cleveland rallied for five runs on four hits and two walks. The big blow was a bases-loaded double by Bob Avila.

Manager Al Lopez pulled Pierce in the eighth for Drogo. He hit a two run homer off Dick Tomaneck, third Cleveland pitcher.

WVU TRAINER LECTURES

The Game, Not His Clowning, Came First With Hundley

By MICKEY LOGUE

When it comes to packing grandstands, Hot Rod Hundley might have taught P. T. Barnum a few tricks.

His colorful antics kept the Standing Room Only sign out most game nights during his spectacular career at West Virginia University.

The urge to clown always burned brightly beneath his WVU tee shirt, but first he was a great basketball player. The shenanigans came second to the game.

Albert Calvin (Whitey) Gwynne, a lecturer at the 20th annual GACA coaching clinic, never saw a fellow more determined to play basketball than Hundley. And Whitey's been training West Virginia athletes for 28 seasons.

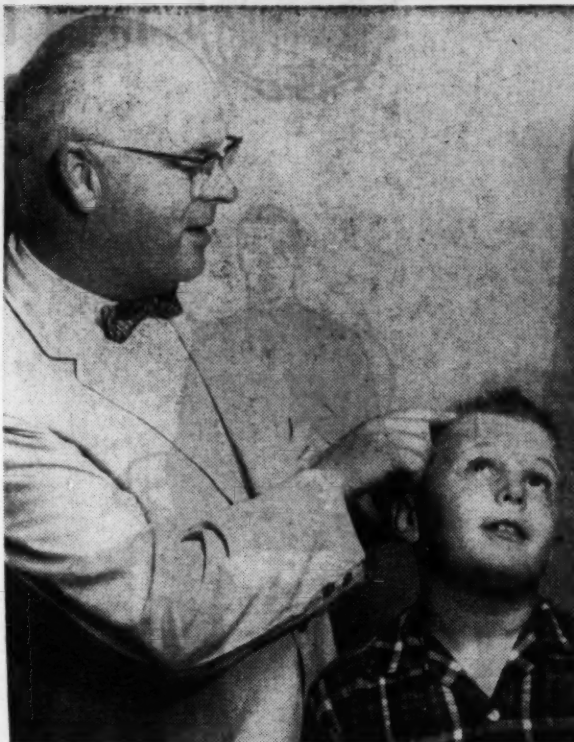

"He had one knee operation before he came to West Virginia and another his sophomore year," Gwynne said. "He recovered from the removal of cartilage in his knee faster than anybody I ever saw. You practically have to drag lots of athletes to the training room, but we had to chase Hundley out. He was in there all the time trying to get that knee in shape."

Hundley arrived at West Virginia via a tough Charleston, W. Va., neighborhood and was "kind of arrogant" at first.

"He matured mentally, physically and socially," said Gwynne, "and I wouldn't hesitate now to recommend him to any company in the country as a public relations man."

There's another fellow in town who's taken care of any job worries "Hundley might have had. Big George Mikan, new coach of the Minneapolis Lakers with whom he ruled pro basketball for many seasons as a player, has the hardword rights to Hot Rod. Mikan'll have to wait,

DAD WHITEY GWYNNE COMES TO THE RESCUE
Son Jim (9) Gets First Aid from West Virginia Trainer

however, until Uncle Sam is finished with him.

Pappy Lewis, West Virginia football coach, can tell Mikan of Hundley's sense of humor. When the Mountaineers went to tear away jerseys, Hot Rod was one of the first to hear it.

"He was sitting in the dining hall one day when Lewis came by," said Gwynne. "Hot Rod said, 'Don't worry coach, just wait until basketball season, and we'll pay for those tear-away jerseys.'"

Gwynne spent 21 months at Athens with the Naval pre-flight program during the Bulldogs' great Frank Sinkwich - Charlie Trippi era.

"I had a lot of fun with Bill Kern, who used to coach at West Virginia," Gwynne said. "He had turned Trippi down because he didn't think he was big enough."

CLINIC NOTES — No wonder Bear Bryant denied rumors he would retire as head coach and step up as athletic director at Texas A&M. He already is director of athletics at the Aggie institution.

Auburn backfield coach Buck Bradberry reports former Tiger quarterback Bobby Freeman (1954) is learning multi-positions among the professional specialists. He is playing some offensive halfback, quarterback and defensive sidekick. And for good measure he's holding the ball for Lou (The Toe) Groza's Cleveland Browns placements.

Hartman gave up the fourth run in the seventh. Stan Pawloski forced Baumer, who had singled to center. He was wild pitched to second, and scored on Dick Brown's drive to left.

Then came the Reynolds and Montag heroics, and the dismal finish.

The game was played in a light drizzle, which started in the second inning.

Lefty Ken MacKenzie will try to salvage the final game of the series Wednesday night, with big Carl Thomas (11-10) going for the Bears.

CRACKER DIARY: Mobile Manager Don Heffner renewed memories with old St. Louis Brown teammate Rick Ferrell before the game. Ferrell is now making little plus and minus signs as a member of the Detroit Tiger scouting staff. And Luke Appling was present to report about his bass fishing. . . . Quoting Heffner on Wally Seward's Monday night pitching performance: "It was his best of the season. He was always ahead of hitters, and near the plate."

Cards' Backslide Reaches No. Seven

Cubs' Rush Takes Third
On Steady Nine-Hitter, 6-2

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP)—The seventh-place Chicago Cubs poured more cold water on the pennant hopes of the St. Louis Cardinals today by handing them a 6-2 defeat before 11,039 here today.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs over the Cardinals. The loss was St. Louis' seventh in a row, and it dropped the Redbirds six games back of Milwaukee's pacesetter Braves pending the leaders' game tonight in Cincinnati.

Bob Rush, a 12-time loser, received credit for his third win of the year—his second straight over St. Louis. Rush needed help from Dick Littlefield in the ninth after the Cardinals had scored both of their runs.

Ken Boyer and Hobie Landrith singled ahead of Joe Cunningham's pinch double. Rush exited at this point. Except for a single by Alvin Dark, Littlefield had little trouble getting the last two outs.

Rush smashed two doubles as St. Louis

St. Louis Cardinals (7-11) defeated the Chicago Cubs (10-10) today at Wrigley Field. The Cardinals scored two runs in the ninth inning to win the game.

The game was called at the end of seven innings by mutual agreement.

Julian Mock and Gil Adair led the East Atlanta attack with four hits each while Dan Smallwood and Lamar Smith had three apiece.

The two teams meet again Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at South Fulton Park.

Golf for All Murphy's 3 Birdies Help to Morale Only

By Bert Prather

City Junior champ Don Patterson is giving the oldsters a sample of his shotmaking out at Druid Hills Golf Club before departing Friday for the International Jaycee Junior Championship at Columbus, Ohio.

Playing in quarter-finals of the President's Cup (a handicap tourney) Sunday at Druid Hills, Don gave Beau Murphy six strokes and beat him, 3 and 2, despite the fact Beau fired even par on the final nine. Don, you see, only shot the par 72 DHGC layout in 34-32-66.

Discussing the match Murphy said, "I knew I'd had it when I birdied 10, 11 and 12 and could pick up only one hole on the youngster. The only mistake he made on the round was three-putt one hole to get a par."

Don's semifinal foe Wednesday is Horace Smith. In this match he'll have to give 16 strokes. He'd better shoot another 66 to be safe.

M. R. McMahon, who has been playing golf about 20 years, finally caged one of those cherished aces Sunday at Meadowbrook CC. M.R., playing in a threesome with Bob Estes and Hugh Saxon, holed out his nine iron tee shot on the 135-yard No. 2 hole.

Dempsey Wright says Lt. Lester Kelly will be on hand to defend his Meadowbrook Invitational crown Labor Day weekend, Uncle Sam willing.

CHIP SHOTS: Jimmy Sutton, a member of Georgia Tech's links combo, and Bob Schuman, who plays for Florida State, tangled in 36-holes finals for Bobby Jones Club championship with the Jacket ace squeezing out a 1-up decision. Schuman ousted defending champ Abe Massar in the semis. . . . Marge and Bunk Bradford captured Meadowbrook's Sunday cat and dogfight with plus 17. Bunk had to birdie 18 to beat the Mrs. by a stroke, 81-82. Marge and Marge Rider won second with plus 12. . . . Mrs. Charles Altman, Mrs. Jim Clay, Mrs. Joe Wilburn, Mrs. Dave Warner and Mrs. Hal Denson carried off prizes in AWGA play Tuesday at Capital City. Atlanta Senior Golf Assn., will hold its August tourney Saturday and Sunday at Billy Wilson's Bobby Jones course. All golfers over 50 are invited to join in the fun.

East Lake and Capital City club champs will be crowned Labor Day. Jim Clay is CC's defender, while Pierce Miller is present EL titlist.

Mrs. A. E. Wilson Jr. picked up A division prize in last East Lake WGA tourney. Mrs. R. J. Rudder and Mrs. J. G. Wilburn prevailed in B division, while Mrs. A. C. Trundle and Mrs. C. E. Drummond won in C. Mrs. Eugene Leonard and A. M. Deliers in D and Mrs. G. A. Maiden and Mrs. O. C. Yeakley in E. . . . Mrs. Sanford Davis had only eight members to preside over as head of Carrollton's Sunset Hills Women's GA when it was organized four years ago. Now there are 62, all active golfers. Babs Lee is current club champ.

Dow Finsterwald, who has not been out of the money in something like 58 consecutive tournaments, has a big booster here in Bill Permont. Bill, a new East Lake member, was teammate of Dow's at Ohio U. and both hail from Athens, Ohio. . . . Tom Vereen is new prey of Moultrie's Sunset Country Club, succeeding J. W. Clark, who assumed the new duties of vesp. Jack Hatfield, secretary, and Mrs. Tom Vereen, treasurer, were other new officers elected. Directors are Louis Shepard, Dr. Robert Joiner, Roy Parrish Jr., Dorcie Huffaker, Bill Aycock, Buddy Clark and Carlton Duggan. Mrs. Peggy Martin's 93 was best ever for her over Peachtree's rugged acres. Joe Morris, Norris Broyles, J. C. Malone, Julian Harrison and Jack Fraser divided blind bogey honors at Peachtree. Winning figure was 77. They are all expected to participate in a 36-hole medal tournament at the club Labor Day week.

Hunt Buys Car For Peach Race

T. C. Hunt, Southern MARC's runnerup in professional sportsman point standings, has decided on a new way to begin winning. He's got a new car.

Hunt this week bought Harold Fryer's car that won the first Peach Bowl sportsman race here. He'll be driving it Wednesday night in the weekly Peach Bowl show trying to out Bud Lunsford last week's winner, from the top spot.

All out-of-state drivers, including Sam McQuaig of Tallahassee and Eddie McDonald of Phenix City, Ala., will return in the 24-car field which begins the six-event program at 8:30 p.m.

Reid Heads GACA

Bernie Reid of Albany Tuesday was elected president of the Georgia Athletic Coaches Assn., succeeding Wayman Creel of Northside.

Pels Slug Barons, 7-5, But Pesky Protests

Nashville Tops Little Rock, 8-3;
Lookouts Wallop Memphis, 11-3

From Press Dispatches
New Orleans Pels' Buddy Carter and Frank Wehner went on a homer spree in the late innings Tuesday, to give the Pels a 7-5 victory over Birmingham.

However, the Barons are hoping to replay the game Wednesday night, if a protest they filed is upheld by Southern Assn. president Charlie Huth.

The Pels overcame a 4-0 lead with three runs in the sixth and successive homers by Carter and Wehner in the eighth.

In other games the league's top two teams were splitting doubleheaders. First place Nashville clubbed Little Rock, 8-3, in the first game but the Travelers outslugged the Vols, 13-8, in the second game. Chattanooga beat Little Rock (10-10) today at Municipal Stadium. The game was called at the end of seven innings by mutual agreement.

NEW ITALIAN VICE CONSUL—Dr. Alfredo Trinchieri, left, Italian consul general at New Orleans, installs Benjamin M. Parker of Atlanta as honorary vice consul here Tuesday. Parker, an attorney, will be responsible for promoting commercial and cultural exchanges between Georgia and Italy. His commission and a plaque were presented him at a luncheon given by the First National Bank. Consular representatives of 10 of 11 foreign countries with offices in Atlanta were present.

Williams Says His Job Demands He Be 'Boss'

T. V. Williams said Tuesday that legislation setting up his job required him to be a "boss," and that he was going to be "boss" as long as he was commissioner of the State Department of Revenue.

"You can call me a czar if you like," the commissioner told a luncheon meeting of the Druid Hills Civic Club meeting at the Druid Hills Golf Club.

Williams said that his department had cut illicit whisky operations in the state by 50 per cent. Speaking of the "moonshine fund," made up of contributions from the legal liquor interests, he said that the plan was outlined at a meeting in 1954 attended by law enforcement officers and editors of the Atlanta newspapers.

NO OPPOSITION

"It met with no opposition when it was then discussed," Williams said. "It was just when there was the possibility that I might be a candidate for governor that the fund got the name of being dangerous."

Williams said that the fund had benefited the people of Georgia, and that there was still enough money in the fund so that informers' fees are still being paid. He said that the money would probably last the rest of this year.

It's 12 Years Since V-J Day

American calendars Wednesday will mark "V-J Day No. 12"—the 12th anniversary of the Aug. 14, 1945, Japanese surrender that dropped the curtain on World War II hostilities.

The white flag was hoisted by Japan eight days after the first atomic bomb ever used in warfare was dropped on Hiroshima, killing 78,150 in a total population of 343,969.

order course in taxidermy, walked off with three blue ribbons at the Georgia Mountain Fair Tuesday.

Bobby Cagle of Ellijay won the fair's top award for two stuffed and mounted animals and one life-like walking duck in his unique one-man show. This is the first year Bobby has entered the fair.

He competed with veteran taxidermist C. D. Sellers, also of Ellijay, who copped a couple of blue ribbons himself, one for an animal exhibit and one for his apples.

The fair, drawing record early crowds, moved into its second day in a welter of red, white, blue and gold ribbons Tuesday as judging got underway.

Mrs. Esther Witt of Helen took 16 blue ribbons for her handwork exhibit, including everything from handmade blouses to quilts and baby clothes.

Mrs. Dick Paris of Hiwassee, wife of the fair's president, took the sweepstakes award at a flower show for her church arrangement, and Mrs. N. G. Camp, Blairsville, won the coveted tricolor award for her dahlias.

Mrs. Gertrude Brown, Hiwassee, won six blue ribbons and four

Buckhead Tap Flow Will Rise

Thousands of residents in the Buckhead area will get increased water pressure next week when the new 4,000,000-gallon Northside water storage tank will be placed into emergency service.

Waterworks Manager Paul Weir, said Tuesday that the tank can be used now and that a temporary pump will be utilized until the permanent pump is installed. All work on the facility will not be finished until sometime in October, Weir added, "but we thought we should do everything possible to get more water into the area at the earliest possible moment."

The new tank, along with its booster system, will cost about $1,000,000. The tank is now undergoing final tests. It is similar to another tank placed in operation last year in the Adamsville area.

Weir stressed that no water shortage is anticipated in the Buckhead area, but added the pressure at times is "mighty low," and the temporary arrangement will bolster it.

The tank will fill by gravity at night and can be pumped off in daytime when water demands are heaviest.

Get School Posts

Harold McKenzie Carson has been named projects engineer for the $16,900,000 school expansion program, and Floyd Crawl, mathematics teacher at Howard High School, has been elected a principal. He will be assigned by the school administrative staff.

Praise for Teachers

On the heels of a report on teacher qualifications Miss Ira Jarrell, school superintendent, Tuesday praised Atlanta white teachers for "doing an outstandingly exceptional job." She said the annual per pupil cost in Atlanta was $174 in 1953-54, and was $223 last school year compared to a national average of $300 a year for cities in Atlanta's population class. "Despite the fact that teachers' salaries in Atlanta are substantially below the national average, white teachers have maintained educational standards equal to the national average," Miss Jarrell added.

No Blame on Swan

Parks Manager George I. Simons Tuesday informed Alderman Charlie Leftwich, chairman of the parks committee, that the recent death of a Swiss swan at Grant Park was not due to any negligence on the part of the city.

Simons said the loss of the swan was "regrettable and unfortunate." He said his examinations into the death of the bird presented by the Swiss consul here failed to produce any evidence of negligence. He said his investigation convinced him the swan was alive and healthy shortly before it was found dead.

There were criticisms about neglect at the time.

5-Year-Old Son Accidentally Shoots To Death His Mother Near Monroe

MONROE, Aug. 13 (AP)—A Walton County mother of three was accidentally shot and fatally wounded today by her 5-year-old son.

The office of Sheriff Lewis Howard reported that a single-barrel shotgun which little Rickey Hall had managed to get hold of went off and hit his mother, Mrs. Albert Hall.

The accident occurred about 8 a.m. while the father was away from home. Mrs. Hall, mother also of two older children, died at 9:45 a.m. at the Walton County Hospital.

State Loan Firms' Interest Is $11.5 Million in a Year

Small loan companies in Georgia collected about $11,500,000 in interest from borrowers during the 12 months that ended June 30.

This was disclosed by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher's annual report on the office of Comptroller General Zack D. Cravey, who is also industrial loan commissioner.

Thrasher's audit showed that Cravey's office collected $343,364 in taxes from the loan companies during the last fiscal year. The tax is based on three per cent of the interest collected by the companies.

The tax does not apply to other

Atlantan Indicted On Murder Charge

George Flournoy, 66, Negro, of a northeast Atlanta address, was indicted Tuesday on a charge of murder in the Aug. 10 fatal stabbing of another Negro.

The Fulton grand jury charged Flournoy with killing Robert Johnson, 42, of 226 Green St., N.E. Investigating officers said they talked to the victim before he died and learned that Johnson slapped a young girl.

charges made by the companies such as loan fees and insurance premiums.

The audit showed that Cravey's office collected a total of $9,319,470 in various fees and taxes, including the industrial loan tax. This represented an increase of about $1,000,000 over the previous fiscal year.

Thrasher reported that Cravey's office had an operating deficit of $2,544, due largely to an obligation of $2,559 to Cravey in undrawn salary. Cravey said he would have no comment until he studied the audit.

In another audit, Thrasher reported that spending by the State Commerce Department amounted to $396,984 during the 1957 fiscal year. This was an increase of about $135,000 over the previous year total of $259,060.

The largest item in the department's spending — $274,323 — went for printing, publicity and advertising. The Commerce Department places advertisements in national publications seeking to attract industry to Georgia.

Civic Clubs In DeKalb Seek To Unite

A move to coordinate 30 DeKalb County civic clubs through one organization is gaining impetus, acting chairman George W. Porter said Tuesday.

To be called the Federated Civic Clubs of DeKalb, the organization would represent clubs with an estimated membership of 6,000 families, Porter said.

Purpose of the group, said Porter, is to exchange civic information, share problems and pool resources and power among DeKalb's various civic clubs.

The club will be formally organized at a meeting Oct. 8, Porter said, when dues will be collected.

Porter urged civic club members present at a recent organizational meeting in the Decatur city hall to see that their groups become members of the federation. He said a federation of civic clubs could accomplish more for the county as a whole and their own communities in particular.

Fulton's Tax Digest Put at $713,401,586

Comptroller John Still "guessed" within three-tenths of one per cent how many hundreds of millions of dollars Fulton County's tax digest would include this year, records showed Tuesday.

A budget report by the comptroller showed the actual digest for the year to be $713,401,586. Still, in preparing the 1957 budget, had estimated it would total $715,861,350.

But the estimate was not just a "guess." Still said more than two weeks of calculations and consultations were behind the figure.

The comptroller's budget report also showed that receipts are $227,912.03 under last year to date and expenditures are up $673,372.82, as anticipated in the budget. An anticipated increase in receipts over last year will be realized if the same percentage of taxes is collected this year, Still explained.

The county has had to borrow

$650,000 more for temporary operating expenses until taxes come in than it did last year, but tax receipts in August "are expected to produce operating cash to meet expenses without further borrowing," Still reported.

red ribbons for products from her garden and kitchen.

Women of Young Harris received a special award for the little old-fashioned mountain home which they assembled in the exhibit building, and James Haynes, Toccoa, who supplied many of the ancient housekeeping aids displayed there, also won a blue ribbon.

Community groups winning blue ribbons were Mt. Zion Home Demonstration Club, Towns County 4-H club, Fodder Creek Community Club, Woods Grove Community, Friendship Home Demonstration Club, Lumpkin County, Boardtown Community and White County.

Hundreds of visitors from all parts of Georgia, the neighboring Carolinas and Florida are pouring into this lake country for the famous old-time mountain fair.

A sudden shower on opening day settled the sawdust and returned the sharp, cool sparkle to the mountain air, bringing out a rash of sweaters and stoles on visitors who stayed late to see the midway sights and enjoy the outdoor movies put on by the U. S. Forestry Service.

The fair will continue through Saturday night.

Armed Services Day will be celebrated Wednesday with a speech by an Air Force officer from Dobbins Air Base and an exhibit of personal equipment used by Air Force pilots. This one-day exhibit will also include parachutes and life rafts, the 582nd Bomber-Fighter Wing display and a cutaway P-35 jet engine.

Meanwhile, farm products and home crafts are the stellar attractions of the fair, drawing nostalgic city visitors who finger the blue ribbons wistfully and ask for information on how to grow grapes or tomatoes and where to get a certain quilt pattern.

Wall Street Worried by The Franc

By ELMER C. WALZER
United Press Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Aug. 13—Back in 1896, about the time William Jennings Bryan's dissertation on silver was getting into swing, Dr. Andrew Dickson White wrote a learned thesis on fiat money inflation in France.

On Nov. 18, 1933, Bank of New York & Trust Co. had that pamphlet reprinted and distributed around the financial district. That period, some 24 years ago, was one when world currencies were anything but stable and there were reports of all sorts of disaster approaching.

There probably isn't a brokerage house in town which hasn't a copy of White's famous dissertation on the fiat money—the French revolution—how the printing presses turned out money and how French currency fell apart.

Ever so often this booklet is quoted in the market letters. The street has come to regard that small book as a work of art, a gem on its subject. Many a market man wishes there were similar little texts on the other intricacies of finance.

CORNELL PRESIDENT

White was president and professor of history at Cornell University. He had been ambassador to Russia. He knew how to write dramatically.

In view of the recent French currency difficulties, it isn't surprising that the White book again is mentioned in the market letters.

France has been a source of study for those who probe the wiles of fiat money and the eventual downfall of a currency when the printing press is turned on.

John Law, a Scottish financial expert, was put to work by the French government after the reign of Louis XIV. He built up the Banque Generale in 1716 and put the printing press to work with a vengeance. The end result was repudiation of the French currency.

SCIENTIFICALLY

Less than 100 years later, during the French revolution, the French again got the idea of printing currency. This time they planned to do it scientifically.

The white heads tried to bring reason but couldn't. The majority said the repudiation of John Law's money would never happen again. Things would be different now.

The professor wrote the story of this situation in 67 pages and Wall Street has never let it get cold on its bookshelves.

In 1790, when the printing presses in France began turning out currency, one could buy a bushel of oats for 18 cents. By 1796 the same amount of oats cost $10. A $4 cart load of wood of 1790 became a $500 load in 1796.

CABBAGE FOR $5.25
A pound of soap went from 18 cents to $8; a cabbage from eight cents to $5.25; a pair of shoes from $1 to $40; 25 eggs from 25 cents to $4; and a pound of sugar from 18 cents to $12.25.

Wall Street isn't saying France will do it again, but it is bringing up the French situation as one of the difficulties in today's stock market.

France's troubles, of course, go back to World War II days. Later they have been aggravated by the Suez Canal crisis when the French joined the British and Israeli forces in attacking Egypt, by the Algerian situation, and by foreign trade losses.

State Gets An Oxygen, Gas Plant

AUGUSTA, Aug. 13 (AP)—The Marks Oxygen Co. announced Tuesday it will build a $1 million plus liquid oxygen plant here.

Pierce E. Marks Sr., president, said the installation would be the first of its kind in Georgia and the largest in the Southeast. It will be capable of producing 18,000,000 cubic feet of liquid oxygen and nitrogen and 425,000 cubic feet of argon gas a month.

The plant will be on a six-acre tract just off U.S. Highway 1, 78 and 25 and construction will start immediately, Marks said.

Marks said his company, an independent producer of industrial gases since 1952, entered the liquid oxygen-nitrogen field because of the great expansion in this industry and the critical need for liquid gases in the guided missile and Air Force "breathing oxygen" program.

American Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 13 (AP)—American stocks were mostly higher today, with final prices 20 to 70 cents a share higher.

Hedging and liquidation brought small initial declines, but sagging tendencies were reversed during the forenoon on a slight increase in trade buying and short covering.

Toward the close the uptrend gained some momentum, featured by the purchase of about 3,500 shares of July futures, credited to Memphis interests.

Most traders adopted a sideline position today, awaiting a clearer picture of prospects for the 1957 cotton crop.

GM Share Of Sales Takes Dive

DETROIT, Aug. 13 (AP)—General Motors' share of the January-June new car market this year declined to the lowest level in five years, according to Automotive News.

Meanwhile, it added, registration figures for the year's first six months showed Ford Motor Co. achieved its deepest penetration of the market in three years and Chrysler Corp.'s share was its biggest in four years.

OTHERS AT LOW EBB
Sales shares of both American Motors and Studebaker-Packard were described as at the lowest ebb for any half-year period since their corporate formation, although both showed gains in June.

Total new car registrations for this year's January-June half were reported as 3,070,875, compared with 3,088,487 in the like 1956 half. In this year's registrations Ford led Chevrolet, 763,670 units to 726,396. In the same period last year the count was Chevrolet 806,100; Ford 665,733.

PERCENTAGE OF SALES
Analyzing the registrations, Automotive News said GM's total was 45.10 per cent, compared with 51.92 per cent in the same 1956 period; Ford Motor was up to 30.21 from 26.92 in the first half of 1956 and Chrysler Corp. up to 19.05 per cent from 15.78 in the year ago period.

American Motors' share was reported at 1.90 per cent against 1.99 in January-June last year, and Studebaker-Packard's share this year was 1.12 per cent against 2.02 per cent in the first half of last year.

The paper reported miscellaneous makes, nearly all of which were foreign-built cars, accounted for 2.62 per cent of registrations in January-June this year against 1.37 per cent in the like 1956 period.

Wheat Rises And Absorbs Profit Take

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP)—Wheat futures absorbed some profit-taking and hedging today on the Board of Trade and then moved upward again, although advances were not as sharp as in the previous session.

Soybeans, which led the previous advance, dropped as much as two cents in early dealings and then rallied somewhat with wheat. Corn was weak and oats following suit with minor losses.

There were some reports of flour business, and when hedge selling turned out to be limited wheat prices moved upward. Chicago arrivals were small at eight cars, although spring wheat receipts in the Northwest again were heavy. Minneapolis and Duluth received 1,431 cars, compared with 660 a year ago.

Traders said they received reports that Venezuela bought some U.S. flour for shipment from August through October. The government is expected to award about 800,000 sacks of flour to mills for domestic and foreign relief distribution.
